Listening with Your Eyes Sheila Stewart, 2014-09-29 Kids who are deaf or hard of hearing might not be able hear what's going on around them but their eyes give them a lot of information about the world Some people who are deaf or hard of hearing might wear hearing aids or have surgery to help their ears hear better while others rely even more on their eyes for help People who can't hear can understand a lot by watching people's actions and looking at the expressions on their faces They might also be able to lip read or they might use sign language to communicate Being deaf or hard of hearing doesn't mean life is any less exciting and interesting

Volunteer Tales Savita Bailur, Helen Grant, 2003 During the last night at Boca de Tomates a violent tropical storm raged across the coast stampeding through the camp and devastating our home We watched in awe as the already slanting structure swayed precariously around us as chunks of the roof flew off into the sky and as a nearby palm tree was struck by lightning Our comfortable Brighton flat and the once ubiquitous chatter of house prices and internet millionaires seemed a world away A great number of people consider volunteering at some point in their life and this is a nuts and bolts guide to volunteering full of honest accounts from the people who know These are true life accounts from people of all walks of life and ages who decided to leave their normal lives behind to take up the volunteer challenge overseas Their stories include tales of travel and adventure tales of hardship tales of kindness frustration and humour Reading them you too will experience culture shock in Ghana the fear of war in Sierra Leone helplessness in the face of poverty in Cambodia fishing for piranha in Suriname the struggles of an outsider in China and much much more They will open your eyes to new worlds and may even change your outlook in the ways they changed the volunteers Volunteer Tales will appeal to those who have already volunteered abroad or are considering it It can be comforting and interesting to know that others have gone through similar experiences and in the latter case extremely useful to know what it would be like Each contribution has something different to offer and is particularly fascinating for anyone wanting to know the reality of a country they may intend to visit However these stories will also be enjoyed by readers with no interest in becoming a volunteer at all They provide entertaining humorous reading brimming with memories from life on the road
