Casalis, 2013-10      My Life in Basuto Land Eugene Casalis, 2015-07-01 Excerpt from My Life in Basuto Land A Story of Missionary Enterprise in South Africa. This book has been placed upon the list of the Religious Tract Society because it describes in very graphic and picturesque style the planting of Christian Missions among the Basutos in the early part of this century. M. Casalis has not attempted to write a connected history of the mission; he has only put together his recollections of the men and deeds of fifty years since under the general title of Mes Souvenirs. In a fascinating manner he sketches for us his early life in France, his spiritual education and development, and his pioneer work in South Africa. His experiences in the latter country have all the freshness of an original explorer, and they refer to a time when Moffat and Livingstone were yet unknown to fame. The book has been very popular in its French dress, and it is hoped that it will soon find a wide circle of friends among English readers. Southern Africa to 1945 Cherryl Walker, 1990      Cultivating the Colonies Christina Folke Ax, Niels Brimnes, Niklas Thode Jensen, Karen Oslund, 2014-06-16 The essays collected in Cultivating the Colonies demonstrate how the relationship between colonial power and nature reveals the nature of power. Each essay explores how colonial governments translated ideas about the management of exotic nature and foreign people into practice and how they literally got their hands dirty in the business of empire. The eleven essays include studies of animal husbandry in the Philippines, farming in Indochina, and indigenous medicine in India They are global in scope ranging from the Russian North to Mozambique examining the consequences of colonialism on nature including its impact on animals fisheries farmlands medical practices and even the diets of indigenous people Cultivating the Colonies establishes beyond all possible doubt the importance of the environment as a locus for studying the power of the colonial state Historical Dictionary of Lesotho Scott Rosenberg, Richard F. Weisfelder, 2013-06-13 Lesotho is rather different from most other African countries For starters it is a kingdom which preserves a traditional hierarchy and customs and its population consists of one fairly homogenous ethnic group although admittedly there are differences and occasional rifts within it Then it is a landlocked country completely surrounded by South Africa on which it depends heavily Economically it has not been doing particularly well this partly because the country is so poorly endowed by nature and its people often eke out a living abroad Politically there have been ups and downs the downs fortunately lying in the past with Lesotho doing somewhat better since the latest elections Socially and culturally as hinted it is quite unique and this can be gathered from reading the book This second edition of Historical Dictionary of Lesotho covers the full scope of Lesotho's ancient colonial and independence eras It gives greater emphasis to the more recent period and brings the book fully up to date This is done through a chronology an introductory essay appendixes and an extensive bibliography The dictionary section has over 400 cross referenced entries on civil society key events leaders governmental international religious and other private organizations policies political movements and parties economic elements and many other areas that have shaped the country's trajectory This book is an excellent access point for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more about Lesotho Imperial Gullies Kate Barger Showers, 2005 Once the grain basket for South Africa much of Lesotho has become a scarred and treeless wasteland The nation's spectacular gullying has concerned environmentalists and conservationists for more than half a century In Imperial Gullies Soil Erosion and Conservation in Lesotho Kate B Showers documents the truth behind this devastation Showers reconstructs the history of the landscape beginning with a history of the soil She concludes that Lesotho's distinctive erosion chasms called dongas often cited as an example of destructive land use practices by African farmers actually were caused by colonial and postcolonial practices The residents of Lesotho emerge as victims of a failed technology Their efforts to mitigate or resist implementation of destructive soil conservation engineering works were thwarted and they were blamed for the consequences of policies promoted by international soil conservationists since the 1930s Imperial Gullies calls for an observational experimental and most importantly a fully consultative and participatory approach to address Lesotho's serious contemporary problems of soil erosion The first book to bring to center stage the historical practice of colonial soil science and a cautionary tale of western science in unfamiliar terrain it will interest a broad interdisciplinary audience in African and environmental studies social sciences and history Showers shows how local people understood that colonial contour conservation methods and road building actually stimulated gully erosion something colonial scientists failed to realize Overall it is undoubtedly one of the most important books written to date on any part of the environmental history of Africa Moreover it stands out in the discipline of environmental history in general as an unusually sophisticated work of great insight and explanatory power Richard H Grove author of Green Imperialism Colonial Expansion Tropical Island Edens and the Origins of Environmentalism 1600 1860 Kate B Showers is a visiting research fellow and senior research associate at the Centre for World Environmental History University of Sussex England She has lived in rural Lesotho and has served as head of research Institute of Southern African Studies National University of Lesotho
