Knight,2017-01-25 In cell television is now a permanent feature of prisons in England and Wales and a key part of the experience of modern incarceration This sociological exploration of prisoners use of television offers an engaging and thought provoking insight into the domestic and everyday lives of people in prison with television close at hand Victoria Knight explores how television contributes to imprisonment by normalising the prison cell In doing so it legitimates this space to hold prisoners for long periods of time typically without structured activity As a consequence television's place in the modern prison has also come to represent an unanticipated resource in the package of care for prisoners This book uncovers the complex and rich emotive responses to prison life Dimensions of boredom anger frustration pleasure and happiness appear through the rich narratives of both prisoners and staff indicating the ways institutions and individuals deal with their emotions It also offers an insight into the unfolding future of the digital world in prisons and begins to consider how the prisoner can benefit from engagement with digital technologies It will be of great interest to practitioners and scholars of prisons and penology as well as those interested in the impact of television on society Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office United States.
