Maury Klein, 2003-05-01 Rainbow's End tells the story of the stock market collapse in a colorful swift moving narrative that blends a vivid portrait of the 1920s with an intensely gripping account of Wall Street's greatest catastrophe The book offers a vibrant picture of a world full of plungers powerful bankers corporate titans millionaire brokers and buoyantly optimistic stock market bulls We meet Sunshine Charley Mitchell head of the National City Bank powerful financiers Jack Morgan and Jacob Schiff Wall Street manipulators such as the legendary Jesse Livermore and the lavish living Billy Durant founder of General Motors As Klein follows the careers of these men he shows us how the financial house of cards gradually grew taller as the irrational exuberance of an earlier age gripped America and convinced us that the market would continue to rise forever Then in October 1929 came a perfect storm like convergence of factors that shook Wall Street to its foundations We relive Black Thursday when police lined Wall Street brokers grew hysterical customers bellowed like lunatics and the ticker tape fell hours behind This compelling history of the Crash the first to follow the market closely for the two years leading up to the disaster illuminates a major turning point in our history Selective Breeding in Aquaculture: an Introduction

Trygve Gjedrem, Matthew Baranski, 2010-03-17 The foundation of quantitative genetics theory was developed during the last century and facilitated many successful breeding programs for cultivated plants and terrestrial livestock The results have been almost universally impressive and today nearly all agricultural production utilises genetically improved seed and animals The aquaculture industry can learn a great deal from these experiences because the basic theory behind selective breeding is the same for all species The first published selection experiments in aquaculture started in 1920s to improve disease resistance in fish but it was not before the 1970s that the first family based breeding program was initiated for Atlantic salmon in Norway by AKVAFORSK Unfortunately the subsequent implementation of selective breeding on a wider scale in aquaculture has been slow and despite the dramatic gains that have been demonstrated in a number of species less than 10% of world aquaculture production is currently based on improved stocks For the long term sustainability of aquaculture production there is an urgent need to develop and implement efficient breeding programs for all species under commercial production The ability for aquaculture to successfully meet the demands of an ever increasing human population will rely on genetically improved stocks that utilise feed water and land resources in an efficient way Technological advances like genome sequences of aquaculture species and advanced molecular methods means that there are new and exciting prospects for building on these well established methods into the future Food losses and waste in primary production Hartikainen, Hanna, Svanes, Erik

,Franke, Ulrika ,Mogensen, Lisbeth ,2017-02-22 This report presents the results from six case studies of food losses and waste in primary production in the Nordic region The product groups studied were carrots onions cereal wheat or rye green peas field peas and cultivated fish rainbow trout or char We used different methods to study the side flows questionnaires in field measurements and interviews Instead of the term food losses and waste we use the term side flows The side flow ranged from 4 % to 31 % for vegetables cereals and pulses and most of the side flow for occurs after harvest e g when sorting and storing the products The main reason for side flow is quality issues Weather conditions and diseases have a major impact on the quality of the products We cannot draw many conclusions on side flow amounts for fish based on the results The reasons for fish side flow are mainly diseases and predators

Marker-assisted Selection Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2007-01-01 A comprehensive description and assessment of the use of marker assisted selection for increasing the rate of genetic gain in crops livestock forestry and fish including the related policy FAO s tradition of dealing with issues of importance to agricultural and economic development in a multidisciplinary and cross sectoral manner
