Romantic Bards and British Reviewers John O. Hayden, 1976 Romantic Bards and British Reviewers John O. Hayden, William Wordsworth, 1976 Reviewing before the Edinburgh 1788-1802 Derek Roper, 2023-08-11 First published in 1978 Reviewing before the Edinburgh is a study of English literary reviewing during the fifteen years before the founding in 1802 of the Edinburgh Review and an assessment of the reviewers achievement The long introductory chapter describes the aims methods staffing readership influence and development of the five important Reviews of the 1790s the Monthly Review Critical Review English Review Analytical Review and British Critic The author argues that this type of Review declined during the 19th century not because of poor performance but because the ambitious aim of comprehensive reviewing had become impossible to achieve The remaining chapters discuss and evaluate the work of these Reviews chiefly in the fields of poetry fiction and political and religious controversy The book fills a gap in the literary and political history of the period provides a compact summary of its review criticism and gives a better perspective on both reviewers and reviewed in years that were unusually fertile in political controversy and literary experiment It will be of interest to students of literature and history

William Wordsworth John Williams, 2017-03-14 From the earliest reviews of his poetry readers were deeply divided on the merits of William Wordsworth's work John Williams looks in detail at the major poems and discusses the critical issues that have dominated discussions of Wordsworth's compositions since they first began to appear in print after 1798. Beginning with a fresh assessment of the controversies that developed around Lyrical Ballads, the chapters trace the evolution of both Wordsworth's poetry and his reputation through to his death in 1850. At each stage Williams investigates the possible reasons why critics and readers responded as they did, enraged by his revolutionary Jacobinism at the turn of the eighteenth century, insulted by the simplicity of the Poems in Two Volumes of 1807, reassured by his commitment to Nature and his reverence for Church and State in the early Victorian period. In the twentieth century Wordsworth has been subjected to a series of extensive critical reappraisals. With reference to a wide range of the poetry Williams goes on to discuss the way Wordsworth has been variously reconstructed as a consequence of the main critical and theoretical initiatives of the last one hundred years. He also examines the Wordsworth we have inherited for the twenty-first century, a poet many still feel has important things to say to the contemporary reader about human relationships, nature, the environment, and our imaginative life.

Romantic Medievalism E. Fay, 2001-12-17. Nineteenth-century medievalism is usually associated with Scott's world of Ivanhoe, but Romantic Medievalism argues that Scott's is a conservative use of the past and that radical poets such as the young Coleridge, Keats, and Shelley used the medieval to critique and change rather than validate the present. These poets identified with the troubadour of courtly love, a disempowered figure often politically at odds with the establishment figure of the knight.

The Romantic Fragment Poem Marjorie Levinson, 2017-11-01. The fragment poem, long regarded as a peculiarly Romantic phenomenon, has never been examined outside the context of thematic and biographical criticism. By submitting the unfinished poems of the English Romantics to both a genetic investigation and a reception study, Marjorie Levinson defines the fragment's formal character at various moments in its historical career. She suggests that the formal determinacy of these works, hence their expressive or semantic affinities, is a function of historical conditions and projections. The English Romantic fragment poems share not so much a particular mode of production as a myth of production. Levinson pries apart these two dimensions and analyzes each independently to consider their relationship. By reconstructing the contemporary reception of such works as Wordsworth's "Nutting," Coleridge's "Christabel" and "Kubla Khan," Shelley's "Julian and Maddalo," and Keats's "Hyperion" fragments and juxtaposing this model against dominant twentieth-century critical paradigms, Levinson discriminates layers, phases, and kinds of intentionality in the poems and considers the ideological implications of this diversity. This study is the first to investigate the English Romantic fragment poem by identifying the assumptions contemporary and belated that govern interpretative procedures. In a substantial summary chapter, Levinson reflects upon the meaning and effects of these assumptions with respect to the facts and fictions of literary production in the period and to the processes of canon formation.
