Gender and Nation in the Spanish Modernist Novel Roberta Johnson, 2003 Offering a fresh revisionist analysis of Spanish fiction from 1900 to 1940 this study examines the work of both men and women writers and how they practiced differing forms of modernism As Roberta Johnson notes Spanish male novelists emphasized technical and verbal innovation in representing the contents of an individual consciousness and thus were more modernist in the usual understanding of the term Female writers on the other hand were less aesthetically innovative but engaged in a social modernism that focused on domestic issues gender roles and relations between the sexes Compared to the more conventional even reactionary ways their male counterparts treated such matters Spanish women's fiction in the first half of the twentieth century was often revolutionary The book begins by tracing the history of public discourse on gender from the 1890s through the 1930s a discourse that included the rise of feminism Each chapter then analyzes works by female and male novelists that address key issues related to gender and nationalism the concept of intrahistoria or an essential Spanish soul modernist uses of figures from the Spanish literary tradition notably Don Quixote and Don Juan biological theories of gender prevalent in the 1920s and 1930s and the growth of an organized feminist movement that coincided with the burgeoning Republican movement This is the first book dealing with this period of Spanish literature to consider women novelists such as Maria Martinez Sierra Carmen de Burgos and Concha Espina alongside canonical male novelists including Miguel de Unamuno Ramon del Valle Inclan and Pio Baroja With its contrasting conceptions of modernism Johnson s work provides a compelling new model for bridging the gender divide in the study of Spanish fiction

Mexico in Its Novel is a perceptive examination of the Mexican reality as revealed through the nation s novel The author presents the Mexican novel as a cultural phenomenon a manifestation of the impact of history upon the nation an attempt by a people to come to grips with and understand what has happened and is happening to them Written in a clear and graceful style this study examines the life of the novel as a genre against the background of Mexican chronology It begins with a survey of the mid twentieth century novel the Mexican novel which came of age in the period following the 1947 publication of Agust n Y ez s The Edge of the Storm During this time the novel resolved some of its most complicated problems and as a result offered a wider and deeper view of reality Having established this circumstance John Brushwood goes back in time to the Conquest and then moves forward to the twentieth century novel Passing from the Colonial Period into the nineteenth century the author recognizes the relationship between Romanticism and the desire for logical social behavior and then views this relationship in the perspective of the Reform an attempt to bring order out of chaos The novel under the D az dictatorship is seen in three different phases and the last D az chapter actually moves into the Revolution itself The novel during the years of fighting is considered along with the first post Revolutionary fiction From that point the developing conflict within Mexican reality itself a conflict between introversion and extroversion nationalism and cosmopolitanism reaches out to seek its solution in the novels of the first chapter Sierra Educational News ,1924 Magical Realism in Postcolonial British Fiction Taner Can,2014-06-01 This study aims at delineating the cultural work of magical realism as a dominant narrative mode in postcolonial British fiction through a detailed analysis of four magical realist novels Salman Rushdie s Midnight s Children 1981 Shashi Tharoor s The Great Indian Novel 1989 Ben Okri s The Famished Road 1991 and Syl Cheney Coker s The Last Harmattan of Alusine Dunbar 1990 The main focus of attention lies on the ways in which the novelists in question have exploited the potentials of magical realism to represent their hybrid cultural and national identities To provide the necessary historical context for the discussion the author first traces the development of magical realism from its origins in European Painting to its appropriation into literature by European and Latin American writers and explores the contested definitions of magical realism and the critical questions surrounding them He then proceeds to analyze the relationship between the paradigmatic turn that took place in postcolonial literatures in the 1980s and the concomitant rise of magical realism as the literary expression of Third World countries Reading Children's Literature: A Critical Introduction - Second Edition Carrie Hintz,Eric L.
