Sigmar Polke Daphne:

Daphne Sigmar Polke, Reiner Speck, 2004 In Greek mythology Daphne is the nymph who runs from Apollo's love determined not to marry She ends up a Laurel tree In contemporary art mythology Sigmar Polke is a magician who transforms seemingly unrelated imagery and techniques into whirlwind idiosyncratic collages that astonish the expectant eye And then there is this object Daphne an artist's book created by Sigmar Polke An oversize anthology of sources of visual inspiration a photocopied book that paradoxically reveals the artist's hand a sketchbook for the machine age Daphne runs and runs is caught by the photocopier and runs some more only to be bound in the end Created directly by Polke himself Daphne is a book with 23 chapters illustrated in large format photocopies Each copy of the book differs as each has been photocopied and manipulated individually pulled from the machine by the hand and watchful eye of the artist Process is revealed over and over again Motifs accumulate page after page as do small graphic cycles The printed dot the resolution the subject and the speed all determine and are determined by the apparently unpredictable and often impenetrable secret of a picture whose drafts are akin to the waste products of a copying machine Even if the motifs in this book provide but a brief insight into the artist's hitherto secret files and archives it is still a significant one For the first time we witness an artist's book with such an aura of authenticity that Walter Benjamin's seminal essay Art in the Age of Mechanical Reproduction bears consequent re-reading Produced in a limited edition of 1 000 copies each of which has been numbered and signed by Sigmar Polke
