Making News Of Police Violence:

Making News of Police Violence Jeffrey Ian Ross Ph.D.,2000-08-30 Although many people consider excessive police violence disconcerting if when and how they voice their opinion or respond by taking some sort of action has generally remained empirically unknown In the hope of understanding this process Ross has developed a four stage model based on a review of the literature and on interviews with the relevant actors He then uses this tool to analyze police violence that occurred in Toronto Canada and New York City over a fifteen year period To better focus the study he uses in depth case studies of three well publicized cases of police violence from each city matched on important criteria This study addresses a difficult timely and important topic for victims for police personnel and for society Ross concludes that in general most individuals do not respond to police use of excessive force further if and when they do usually depends on the context of the violence Using both quantitative and qualitative methods Ross s model integrates a variety of approaches to improve our understanding of how communities come to define and control the use of force by police including literature on the role of media efforts and their impact upon police violence The work concludes with an analysis of the reasons why people react so infrequently to incidents of excessive force

Criminology Explains Police Violence Philip Matthew Stinson Sr.,2020-01-21 Criminology Explains Police Violence offers a concise and targeted overview of criminological theory applied to the phenomenon of police violence In this engaging and accessible book Philip M Stinson Sr highlights the similarities and differences among criminological theories and provides linkages across explanatory levels and across time and geography to explain police violence This book is appropriate as a resource in criminology policing and criminal justice special topic courses as well as a variety of violence and police courses such as policing administration police community relations police misconduct and violence in society Stinson uses examples from his own research to explore police violence acknowledging the difficulty in studying the topic because violence is often seen as a normal part of policing

Justice Ignited Brian Martin,2007 Attacks can backfire on attackers_sometimes spectacularly Examples include the beating of Rodney King by Los Angeles police in 1991 the surveillance of Ralph Nader in 1965 and the invasion of Iraq in 2003 Attackers often inhibit adverse reactions by covering up the attack devaluing the target and using other methods Through numerous detailed case studies Justice Ignited reveals the most promising tactics that can make unfair attacks backfire

Law Enforcement, Communication, and Community Howard Giles, 2002-07-25 Given widespread media attention to issues of crime and its prevention police heroism and new modes of police community involvements this international collection is timely It is unique in examining ways in which police and citizens communicate across a range of contexts and problem areas While much attention is afforded the critical roles of communication by police agencies there has been little recourse to communication science and its theories Likewise the latter has not until recently concerned itself with analyzing police citizen interactions This volume examines the character of such encounters forging new theoretical frameworks having implications for practice in many instances Topics include media portrayals of law enforcement communication and new technologies within police culture domestic violence hate crimes stalking sexual abuse and hostage negotiations This book should be relevant not only to a range of social sciences besides Communication scholars and students but also to practitioners working in the field A Free Press, If You Can Keep It Giovanna Maria Dora Dore, Arya D. McCarthy, James A. Scharf, 2023-05-11 This Brief introduces a novel research approach to investigate freedom of the press in Hong Kong The authors pair computational analyses from the field of natural language processing with qualitative content analysis of patterns of journalistic practice in volatile political settings Together these shed light on the evolution of press freedom in Hong Kong since its return to Chinese sovereignty Providing an interdisciplinary perspective the Brief will appeal to a wide range of readers with interests in computational social science public policy political sciences as well as policy makers think tanks and practitioners who focus on the China Hong Kong nexus Governing with the News Timothy E. Cook, 1998-02-17 From the opening decades of the republic when political parties sponsored newspapers to current governmental practices that actively subsidize the collection and dissemination of the news the press and the government have been far from independent Unlike those earlier days however the news is no longer produced by a diverse range of individual outlets but is instead the result of a collective institution that exercises collective power In explaining how the news media of today operate as an intermediary political institution akin to the party system and interest group system Cook demonstrates how the differing media strategies used by governmental agencies and branches respond to the constitutional and structural weaknesses inherent in a separation of powers system Cook examines the news media's capacity to perform the political tasks that they have inherited and points the way to a debate on policy solutions in order to hold the news media accountable without treading upon the freedom of the press Seeing Justice Mary Angela Bock, 2021 A behind the scenes look at the struggles between visual journalists and officials over what the public sees and therefore much of what the public knows of the criminal justice system In the contexts of crime social justice and the law nothing in visual media is as it seems In today's mediated social world visual communication has shifted to a democratic sphere that has significantly changed the way we understand and use images as evidence In Seeing Justice Mary Angela Bock examines the way criminal justice in the US is presented in visual media by focusing on the grounded practices of visual journalists in relationship with law enforcement Drawing upon extended interviews participant observation contemporary court cases and critical discourse analysis Bock provides a detailed examination of the way digitization is altering the relationships between media consumers and the criminal justice system From tabloid coverage of the last public hanging in the US to Karen shaming videos from mug shots to perp walks she focuses on the practical struggles between journalists police and court officials to control the way images influence their resulting narratives Revealing the way powerful interests shape what the public sees Seeing Justice offers a model for understanding how images are used in news narrative Making the News Amber E. Boydstun, 2022-12-22 Media attention can play a profound role in whether or not officials act on a policy issue but how policy issues make the news in the first place has remained a puzzle Why do some issues go viral and then just as quickly fall off the radar How is it that the media can sustain public interest for months in a complex story like negotiations over Obamacare while ignoring other important issues in favor of stories on balloon boy With Making the News Amber Boydstun offers an eye opening look at the explosive patterns of media attention that determine which issues are brought before the public At the heart of her argument is the observation that the media have two modes an alarm mode for breaking stories and a patrol mode for covering them in greater depth While institutional incentives often initiate alarm mode around a story they also propel news outlets into the watchdog like patrol mode around its policy implications until the next big news item breaks What results from this pattern of fixation followed by rapid change is skewed coverage of policy issues with a few receiving the majority of media attention while others receive none at all Boydstun documents this systemic explosiveness and skew through analysis of media coverage across policy issues including in depth looks at the waxing and waning of coverage around two issues capital punishment and the war on terror Making the News shows how the seemingly unpredictable day to day decisions of the newsroom produce distinct patterns of operation with implications good and bad for national politics Making English Official Katherine S. Flowers, 2024-01-18 An inside look at the movement to make English the only official language in local communities around the US
