Most of them are real-life experiences and tributes to loved ones as well as a bit of Tortolian culture and village history. Some written with a little Caribbean flare in order to remind us of where we came from and transport us along with our memories as far back as forty years. Do we have the courage to acknowledge, to explore our emotions, our feelings, our deepest dreams and desires? In the ancient land of the unconscious, the search for a lost soul and just one moment in eternity commences. When one finds the courage to explore the hidden torments, ghostly thoughts, and gremlins, plunder serenity, but with the courage to explore comes an enchanting garden of memories, archives of pleasure and miracles too. The courage to explore life is like wisdom on wings, bringing the meeting of minds, elements, and nature together. Reality is questioned, and the play of love is enacted. The key to healing, the key to a heart, is discovered, and as the streams of emotions say farewell, humming wings beat to the tune that life in all its facets is in its not tend to conceive of urban land as a blank slate to be wiped clean for development Instead Gutman shows how over and over women turned private houses in Oakland into orphanages kindergartens settlement houses and day care centers and in the process built the charitable landscape a network of places that was critical for the betterment of children families and public life The industrial landscape of Oakland riddled with the effects of social inequalities and racial prejudices is not a neutral backdrop in Gutman s story but an active player Spanning one hundred years of history A City for Children provides a compelling model for building urban institutions and demonstrates that children women charity and incremental construction renovations alterations additions and repurposed structures are central to the understanding of modern cities
