MY GRANDDAUGHTERS ARE COMBING
OUT THEIR LONG HAIR

my granddaughters are combing out their long hair sitting at night on the rocks in Venezuela they have watched their babes falling like white birds from the last of the treetop cradles they have buried them in their hearts where they will never forget to keep on singing them the old songs.

brought down to earth they use twigs, flint scrapers;
acadian their laughter underground makes the thyme flower in darkness,

my granddaughters are thin as fishbones & hornfooted, but they are always beautiful under the stars: like little asian paperthings they seem to open outwards into their own waterbowl.

mornings they waken to light's chink ricocheting off an old Black's Harbour sardinecan.

reduce them the last evangelines make them part of the stars.

my granddaughters are coming out at night, combing their burr-colored hair, by the rocks & streamtrickle in Venezuela, they are burnt out as falling stars but they laugh and keep on singing them the old songs.

EXPERIENCE OF ELDERLY PEOPLE IN NEPAL Purna Bahadur Thapa, 2020-10-01 Living longer is regarded as a triumph of human development Progress in health services has brought noticeable increase in life expectancy and a reduction in mortality and fertility rate In general wrinkled faces and sags weak bones and changes in appearances manifest old age In Nepal by and large old age has been understood largely from the physical dimension thus there is wider belief that in old age people are frail and weak The main purpose of this research is to explore perceptions and practices on old age To explore this I have employed an interpretative research paradigm and qualitative approach with purposive sampling method The major findings of the study show that security concerns of old age have yet to get adequate attention from family members society and government The elderly people have mixed opinions on their age few consider that old age has brought lots of knowledge experience and skills so they are resourceful whereas others assert themselves as utterly dependent on family and helpless Interestingly it also reveals that longevity has provided an opportunity to ponder upon life and death and they tend to chase more spiritual gatherings and functions This study also reveals the mounting generational gaps emerging in the families
