Lorca, Buñuel, Dalí Gwynne Edwards, 2009-06-17 Lorca Bunuel and Dali were in their respective fields of poetry and theatre cinema and painting three of the most imaginative creative artists of the twentieth century their impact was felt far beyond the boundaries of their native Spain But if individually they have been examined by many their connected lives have rarely been considered It is these the ties that bind them that constitute the subject of this illuminating book They were born within six years of each other and as Gwynne Edwards reveals their childhood circumstances were very similar Each was affected by a narrow minded society and an intolerant religious background which equated sex with sin and led all three to experience sexual problems of different kinds Lorca the guilt and anguish associated with his homosexuality Bunuel feelings of sexual inhibition and Dali virtual impotence Having met during the 1920s at the Residencia de Estudiantes in Madrid they developed intense personal relationships and channelled their respective obsessions into the cultural forms then prevalent in Europe in particular Surrealism Rooted in emotional turmoil their work from Lorca's dramatic characters in search of sexual fulfilment to Bunuel's frustrated men and women and Dali's potent images of shame and guilt is highly autobiographical Their left wing outrage directed at bourgeois values and the Catholic Church was strongly felt and in the case of Lorca in particular was sharpened by the catastrophic Civil War of 1936-9 during the first months of which he was murdered by Franco's fascists The war hastened Bunuel's departure to France and Mexico and Dali's to New York Edwards describes how for the rest of his life Bunuel clung to his left wing ideals and made outstanding films while the increasingly eccentric and money obsessed Dali embraced Fascism and the Catholic Church and saw his art go into rapid decline
