Pamela Robertson Wojcik

My Neighborhood The Words And Pictures Of Innercity Children:

My Neighborhood Linda Waldman, 1993 The trauma of daily life in a violent inner city are portrayed through the drawings and essays of children living in Hyde Park Chicago Crossing the Class and Color Lines Leonard S. Rubinowitz, James E. Rosenbaum, 2000-05-15 They were part of the Gautreaux program one of the largest court ordered desegregation efforts in the country's history Named for the Chicago activist Dorothy Gautreaux the program formally ended in 1998 but is destined to play a vital role in national housing policy in years to come The Poverty of Life-Affirming Work Mechthild Hart, 2001-12-30 While society may applaud middle and upper class women who decide to stay home to raise their children there exists a decided abhorrence for single mothers welfare queens who collect public funds but do not work Here Hart challenges traditional notions of welfare mothers by providing first hand accounts of poor urban mothers and revealing the life affirming and moral aspects of their motherwork a form of subsistence work involving many tasks that incorporate the physical psychological emotional and spiritual dimensions of life Though the mothering work these women do is vilified in public discourse as unnecessary and unwanted the author contends that the ethical and epistemological dimensions of life affirming work a key component of motherwork not only structure social political activism but also educational efforts that are oriented towards radical change Concrete experiences of motherwork policy analyses regarding welfare reform efforts oriented towards educational and epistemological border crossings and collective struggles for social change are examined here in a larger theoretical political economic framework Pulling together the many strands of different theoretical fields addressing issues related to critical transformative pedagogy community activism and forms of unpaid work this unique work calls for the unlearning of ways of thinking and feeling which uphold prejudices and life threatening social political hierarchies While the public may sneer at women who choose to accept welfare in order to stay home to raise their children these mothers must continue to perform this invisible work in order that their children may break the cycle of poverty in which they are entrenched The author examines ways in which these mothers organize and carry out educational efforts and political work in the context of extreme poverty and against the harsh criticisms of an unforgiving public Ultimately Hart hopes to convince the public of the inherent importance of motherwork and break down the prejudices that have worked against the urban poor and single mothers Insights of Members of the John Dewey Society for the Study of Education and Culture, 1988 International Handbook of Violence Research Wilhelm Heitmeyer, John Hagan, 2003-12-31 An international manual is like a world cruise a once in a lifetime experience All the more reason to consider carefully whether it is necessary This can hardly be the case if previous research in the selected field has already been the subject of an earlier review or even several competing surveys On the other hand more thorough study is necessary if the intensity and scope of research are increasing without comprehensive assessments That was the situation in Western societies when work began on this project in the summer of 1998 It was then too that the challenges emerged any manual especially an international one is a very special type of text which is anything but routine. It calls for a special effort; the state of the art has to be documented for selected subject areas and its presentation made as compelling as possible. The editors were delighted therefore by the cooperation and commitment shown by the eighty-one contributors from ten countries who were recruited to write on the sixty-two different topics by the constructive way in which any requests for changes were dealt with and by the patient response to our many queries. This volume is the result of a long process. It began with the first drafts outlining the structure of the work which were submitted to various distinguished colleagues: Friedheim Neidhardt of Berlin, Gertrud Nunner-Winkler of Munich and Roland Eckert of Trier, to name only a few, supplied valuable comments at this stage.

Inner City Kids Alice McIntyre, 2000-11-01 Urban teens of color are often portrayed as welfare mothers, dropouts, drug addicts, and both victims and perpetrators of the many kinds of violence which can characterize life in urban areas. Although urban youth often live in contexts which include poverty, unemployment, and discrimination, they also live with the everydayness of school, friends, sex, television, music, and other elements of teenage lives. Inner City Kids explores how a group of African American, Jamaican, Puerto Rican, and Haitian adolescents make meaning of and respond to living in an inner city community. The book focuses on areas of particular concern to the youth, such as violence, educational opportunities, and a decaying and demoralizing urban environment characterized by trash, pollution, and abandoned houses. McIntyre's work with these teens draws upon participatory action research which seeks to co-develop programs with study participants rather than for them.

Hope for the Future Shannon Daley-Harris, 2016-10-01 Whether a parent or pastor, child advocate or Christian educator, professional or volunteer working with children, we yearn for both comfort and challenge, vision and validation, hope and help as we seek to make a difference in the lives of children. In Hope for the Future, Shannon Daley-Harris draws from her twenty-four years of work with the Children's Defense Fund to offer twelve meditations for those working to create a better world for our children. Each meditation focuses on passages of Scripture and weaves together moving stories of children, startling statistics about the challenges facing children, and inspiring examples from other movements and faithful leaders that came before us. Questions for faithful response after each meditation will prompt further reflection and action. This inspirational book can be used as a devotional, in Bible study, discussion, or during a social action committee's discernment.

Fun for Inner City School Students Glendolyn Duhon-Jeanlouis, Alice Duhon-Ross, McCallum, Ashraf Esmail, 2010 Making Math Learning Fun for Inner City School Students is an effective tool for educators and a textbook for professors of higher education. The concepts discussed in the book provide a body of knowledge that will enable leaders to understand the critical issues surrounding inner city school students in their ability to learn mathematical concepts. Research shows that three to five teachers of mathematics leave the school system within the first two years of teaching because of frustration experienced while helping inner city school students comprehend and master mathematical skills Students are often discouraged by inappropriate teaching strategies that favor learning math concepts in isolation rather than making them relevant to daily life or cultural experiences Teachers of math must clearly understand inner city school students learning styles when they are implementing a process for the student to learn Classroom teachers in the twenty first century must have valid knowledge of how the brains of inner city school children work For students to master and comprehend math skills learning activities must be both fun and relevant to their present body of knowledge about life and living Fantasies of Neglect Pamela

Robertson Wojcik,2016-09-19 In our current era of helicopter parenting and stranger danger an unaccompanied child wandering through the city might commonly be viewed as a victim of abuse and neglect However from the early twentieth century to the present day countless books and films have portrayed the solitary exploration of urban spaces as a source of empowerment and delight for children Fantasies of Neglect explains how this trope of the self sufficient mobile urban child originated and considers why it persists even as it goes against the grain of social reality Drawing from a wide range of films children s books adult novels and sociological texts Pamela Robertson Wojcik investigates how cities have simultaneously been demonized as dangerous spaces unfit for children and romanticized as wondrous playgrounds that foster a kid s independence and imagination Charting the development of free range urban child characters from Little Orphan Annie to Harriet the Spy to Hugo Cabret and from Shirley Temple to the Dead End Kids she considers the ongoing dialogue between these fictional representations and shifting discourses on the freedom and neglect of children While tracking the general concerns Americans have expressed regarding the abstract figure of the child the book also examines the varied attitudes toward specific types of urban children girls and boys blacks and whites rich kids and poor ones loners and neighborhood gangs Through this diverse selection of sources Fantasies of Neglect presents a nuanced chronicle of how notions of American urbanism and American childhood have grown up together Subject Guide to Children's Books in Print 1997
