What I Think About Beverly J. Ward, 2016-03-24

There are far too many people hurting and with feelings of being left out of the blessings of God The church is busy dealing with the world and its worldly ways of living in this world Not wanting to offend anyone they sometimes look so much like the world that the Christian is finding it hard to separate themselves from the world With Pop Culture Political Correctness the New Normal Rejection and other status quo the church must not be moved by the cares of this world we must keep our eyes on the kingdom of God our provider the Lord our God We are called to live in this world but to not live like the world This in itself can be a slippery slope if not followed cautiously and patiently with the Word of God We are commissioned by God to encourage the believer to live out their faith in Christ I must tell them about Jesus and the rewards we as believer have in the anointed One What I am doing is giving you key scriptures that has helped me to have a vital relationship with our heavenly Father our brother and head of the church Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit our guide in this life we live here on earth It is possible to honor God with all your heart all your mind and all your spirit God would not have commanded us to live like that and not have made away for us to do just that What I Think About thinking like a Christian will help guide you into using the power you have within to please God and to walk in the authority you have in Christ We have but one person to answer to and that being Jesus By Beverly J Ward

Allen, 2003. The first book dedicated entirely to humanists of African descent. The Black Humanist Experience gives African American humanists the opportunity to discuss their reasons for leaving the religious fold and embracing a humanist life stance. As a minority within a minority, African American humanists may often feel isolated and misunderstood. These thoughtful essays help to draw attention to the vitality of the humanist movement within the black community and they put many myths about humanists to rest. Contrary to popular stereotypes, most humanists do not reject religion out of disillusionment, ignorance, desperation, or misanthropy. The contributors to this volume demonstrate that the decision to adopt the humanist viewpoint is based on intellectual honesty and the best information provided by science history comparative religion and other scholarly disciplines Moreover they show that a central concern of humanists of all races is preservation and promotion of what humanist philosopher Paul Kurtz calls the common moral decencies shared by most religious and ethical systems At a time when faith based organizations are favored politically especially within the black community this timely collection of essays shows that humanism with its emphasis on reason free inquiry moral decency and justice offers much to the challenges facing African Americans The Message Catholic/Ecumenical Edition ,2016-02-01
