Original Edition Kate Sanborn, 2020-11-22 Mr Everett once told a pathetic anecdote of Edmund Burke that in the decline of his life when living in retirement on his farm at Beaconsfield the rumour went up to London that he had gone mad and went round his park kissing his cows and horses His only son had died not long before leaving a petted horse which had been turned into the park and treated as a privileged favourite Mr Burke in his morning walks would often stop to caress the favourite animal On one occasion the horse recognised Mr Burke from a distance and coming nearer and nearer eyed him with the most pleading look of recognition and said as plainly as words could have said I have lost him too and then the poor dumb beast deliberately laid his head upon Mr Burke s bosom Overwhelmed by the tenderness of the animal expressed in the mute eloquence of holy Nature s universal language the illustrious statesman for a moment lost his self possession and

8clasping his arms around his son s favourite animal lifted up that voice which had caused the arches of Westminster Hall to echo the noblest strains that sounded within them and wept aloud

Animal Narratology Joela Jacobs, 2020-12-15 Animal Narratology interrogates what it means to narrate to speak speak for on behalf of and to voice or represent life beyond the human which is in itself as different as insects bears and dogs are from each other and yet more as individual as a single mouse horse or puma The varied contributions to this interdisciplinary Special Issue highlight assumptions about the human perception of attitude toward and responsibility for the animals that are read and written about thus demonstrating that just as the animal does not exist neither does the human In their zoopoetic focus the analyses are aware that animal narratology ultimately always contains an approximation of an animal perspective in human terms and terminology yet they make clear that what matters is how the animal is approximated and that there is an effort to approach and encounter the non human in the first place Many of the analyses come to the conclusion that literary animals give readers the opportunity to expand their own points of view both on themselves and others by adopting another's perspective to the degree that such an endeavor is possible Ultimately the contributions call for a recognition of the many spaces moments and modes in which human lives are entangled with those of animals one of which is located within the creative bounds of storytelling
