Elizabeth Royte, 2011-01-15 Second only to soda bottled water is on the verge of becoming the most popular beverage in the country The brands have become so ubiquitous that we re hardly conscious that Poland Spring and Evian were once real springs bubbling in remote corners of Maine and France Only now with the water industry trading in the billions of dollars have we begun to question what it is we re drinking In this intelligent accomplished work of narrative journalism Elizabeth Royte does for water what Michael Pollan did for food she finds the people machines economies and cultural trends that bring it from distant aquifers to our supermarkets Along the way she investigates the questions we must inevitably answer Who owns our water How much should we drink Should we have to pay for it Is tap safe water safe to drink And if so how many chemicals are dumped in to make it potable What happens to all those plastic bottles we carry around as predictably as cell phones And of course what s better tap water or bottled Peak Plastic Jack Buffington, 2018-11-02 Shows why plastics in aggregate have become a toxin to humans wildlife and the planet and proposes novel solutions that involve neither traditional recycling nor giving up plastic Plastics In the 50 years since Dustin Hoffman s character in The Graduate was instructed that this was the career field of the future we have not been able to escape this ubiquitous but poorly understood material Author Jack Buffington argues that the plastics crisis is careening toward a tipping point from which there will be no return There is still time however to do something about this crisis if we have the imagination and the will to move away from the failed policies of the past This book is the first to propose a new model for linking our synthetic world to the natural one rather than seeking to treat them as separate entities The key is supply chain innovation Buffington presents five market based solutions based on this principle that will allow consumers to continue to use plastic which has in many ways enabled our way of life Alongside these proposed solutions he also addresses the proliferation of plastic as we know it growth that if left unchecked will lead to a planetary crisis according to the United Nations and considers how the material itself might be adapted for a sustainable future iMEC-APCOMS 2019 Muhammed Nafis Osman Zahid, Radhiyah Abd. of cargo around the clock all in the name of profit Yet many of today's startups are rewriting the rules of business how it's done by whom and most importantly for what purpose Journalist Esha Chhabra draws on her decades of reporting to explore not only the feel good do good factors of these restorative enterprises but also the nuanced realities and promise of regenerative business operations Working to Restore examines revolutionary approaches in nine areas agriculture waste supply chain inclusivity for the collective good women in the workforce travel health energy and finance The companies profiled are solving global issues promoting responsible production and consumption creating equitable opportunities for all encouraging climate action and more Chhabra highlights how their work moves beyond the greenwashed idea of sustainability into a new era of regeneration and restoration We meet and learn from people like Marius Smit founder of Plastic Whale the first company to build boats entirely out of plastic waste removed from our oceans and waterways Sbastien Kopp and Francois Ghislain Morillion cofounders of Veja a shoe brand whose mission it is to make the most ecologically sensitive shoes possible Konrad Brits at Falcon Coffees a trading company leading the way with a collaborative supply chain by investing in the local farmers who grow and harvest coffee beans Chief Toaster Rob Wilson and Tristram Stuart at Toast Ale who partner with Wold Top Yorkshire Brewery to repurpose surplus bread and produce an award winning IPA Scott Fry and Martha Butler of Loving Earth a supply chain company that sources cacao from indigenous communities and brings their people and practices to the forefront Working to Restore highlights our most innovative entrepreneurs yet those who understand that we cannot expect to create radical change if we try to sustain a system that has long been broken Instead their efforts of restoration and regeneration should be used as a model for other forward thinking enterprises Inspiring and engaging this book shows it is possible for a business to thrive while living its mission and how the rules can be rewritten to put both the planet and its global citizens at the center
