

significant influence on business performance. Bayang and Enuoh (2009) identified eight areas of entrepreneurial competencies to avert business failure in Nigeria and called for more research attention in entrepreneurial competencies to move business idea from concept to a value creating and profitable firm having observed increasing rate of business failure especially in the SMEs sector which has been recognized and acknowledged as engine of economic growth.

5.0 Conclusion

In the light of increasing business failure especially in the small and medium enterprise sector due to increasing harsh environmental condition in which they operate, it becomes imperative to investigate entrepreneurial success factors most especially factors that are directly related to the entrepreneurs themselves relevant for success in harsh business environment. This paper provides a review of conceptual and theoretical frameworks on entrepreneurial orientation and entrepreneurial competencies as factors related to entrepreneurial capability to avert entrepreneurial success.
