Economy Ron

Martin, 2017-11-30 Economic geographers have always argued that space is key to understanding the economy that the processes of economic growth and development do not occur uniformly across geographic space but rather differ in degree and form as between different nations regions cities and localities with major implications for the geographies of wealth and welfare This was true in the industrial phase of global capitalism and is no less true in the contemporary era of post industrial knowledge driven global capitalism Indeed the marked changes occurring in the structure and operation of the economy in the sources of wealth creation in the organisation of the firm in the nature of work in the boundaries between market and state and in the regulation of the socio economy have stimulated an unprecedented wave of theoretical conceptual and empirical enquiry by economic geographers Even economists who traditionally have viewed the economy in non spatial terms as existing on the head of the proverbial pin are increasingly recognising the importance of space place and location to understanding economic growth technological innovation competitiveness and globalisation This collection of previously published work though containing but a fraction of the huge explosion in research and publication that has occurred over the past two decades seeks to convey a sense of this exciting phase in the intellectual development of the discipline and its importance in grasping the spatialities of contemporary economic life Political Economy of the Environment Simon Dietz, Jonathan Michie, Christine Oughton, 2011-02-01 This book is the culmination of several years work by a group of academics policy makers and other professionals looking to understand how alternative economic thinking and indeed thinking from quite different social scientific disciplines could enhance the mainstream economic approach to environmental and natural resource problems Of the editors Dietz comes from the mainstream economics tradition while Michie and Oughton draw explicitly on institutional and evolutionary economics The various authors represent a range of disciplinary backgrounds and approaches This book draws on the strengths of each and all of these approaches to analyse environmental issues and what can be done to tackle these through corporate and public policy The book argues that the need for an inter disciplinary approach Two themes which emerge repeatedly throughout the book are the need for an interdisciplinary theory of technological change and the need for a similarly interdisciplinary approach to the study of human behaviour and how it influences both production and consumption choices The two themes are of course related Resolving environmental questions requires an understanding of their nature of their causes and to the extent that they are anthropogenic of how to change human behaviour These fundamental issues are the focus of the four chapters that form Part 1 of this volume The remainder of the volume develops them in more detail Canadian Economic History M.H. Watkins, 2000-02-17 Contemporary methodologies include the cliometric style of historical analysis econometrics labour and regional study and the changing parameters of government spending and public finance The juxtaposition of classic theoretical statements with works by outsiders such as G S Kealey B D Palmer R T Naylor R E Ommer among others makes this a solid yet innovative record of the progress in economics over the last forty years Canadian Economic History remains an essential classroom text National Governments and Control of the Internet Giampiero Giacomello, 2004-11-10 This book explores and compares why and to what extent national governments decide to control the Internet and how this impacts on crucial socio economic activities and fundamental civil rights Research in the History of Economic Thought and Methodology Luca Fiorito, Scott Scheall, Carlos Eduardo Suprinyak, 2022-11-30 Volume 40C of Research in the History of Economic Thought and Methodology features a symposium on the work of economist François Perroux edited by Katia Caldari and Alexandre Mendes Cunha with collected book reviews of David M Levy and Sandra J Peart's 2020 Towards an Economics of Natural Equals
