New Labours Women Mps Women Representing Women:

New Labour's Women MPs Sarah Childs, 2004-07-31 Drawing on interviews with over half of new Labour women MPs Sarah Childs reveals how the women experienced being MPs and explores whether they acted for and like women in constituencies in Parliament and in government

New Labour's Women MPs Sarah Childs, 2004-07-31 It was not long after the election of a record number of women to the House of Commons in 1997 that the backlash began The criticism was all encompassing they wore the wrong clothes they voted the wrong way and they were concerned with the wrong issues Above all they were accused of failing to make difference to have failed women and were dismissed by some as Blair s Babes Drawing on in depth interviews with more than half of the new Labour women MPs Sarah Childs reveals how these women actually experienced being MPs and explores whether they acted for and like women in their constituencies in parliament and in government She presents important insights into theories of women s political representation showing that the relationship between women s descriptive and substantive representation is complicated that party and gender identities are crucial that women s differences must be acknowledged and that it might not always be possible for women representatives to act for women even if they want to Including a key section on women s selection for parliament whether women MPs act as role models why it is important that women should be present in politics as well as exploring in depth the subject of women s substantive representation New Labour s Women MPs is essential reading for all those interested in women and politics legislative studies political behaviour and representation

Representing Women in Parliament Marian Sawer, Manon Tremblay, Linda Trimble, 2006-09-27 Written by a major international team of authors this new study features twelve chapters on both new and established parliaments including Australia Canada New Zealand and the United Kingdom It tests the latest theories about women s political representation within Westminster style assemblies and is clearly organized into three key sections

Women and Employment in Public Policy Susan Milner, 2004-07-20 In the UK women s economic empowerment through employment is a success story of the last three decades And yet women are over represented in low paid insecure jobs are under represented in top jobs and earn less than men on average with a marked income gap over the lifecourse When Labour took office in 1997 a new wave of women MPs entered parliament in record numbers and women gained access to ministerial roles including a newly created minister for women However policy on women and employment remained an area of conflict New rights were secured particularly for mothers but when Labour left office a sizeable policy agenda remained unfinished Using documentary evidence and interviews from leading policy actors from the period Women and Employment in Public Policy takes as its starting point the Women and Work Commission which was convened in 2004 to examine causes of the gender pay gap The commission was unable to defuse conflicts over equal pay but it set out an agenda for change at the level of government private sector work organizations and public sector organizations Milner examines why the commission could not resolve key conflicts and why its broad based recommendations were only partially taken up She traces the subsequent development of policy observing well established preferences for light touch regulation which can raise awareness but leave entrenched practices unchallenged and weaken individual women's access to redress Detailed study of the working of the commission provides lessons on the policy process particularly for those seeking to influence policy It also shows that within the wider policy space opportunities for action to effect change are possible based on appeals to instrumental logic or political exchange but are constrained by party leadership

Women in Governing Institutions in South Asia Nizam Ahmed, 2017-08-24 This edited volume examines policies aimed at increasing the representation of women in governing institutions in six South Asian countries Divided into three parts it addresses the implications of uniformity and diversity for the substantive representation of women in parliament civil service and local government The contributing authors explore the scope and limits of positive discriminatory policies within distinct country contexts and the implications of the lack of such policies in other countries Their findings shed new light on the extent to which the higher presence of women in different governing institutions matters particularly in respect of promoting women's issues and also on the way men and women in different governing institutions look upon each other's roles and adopt strategies for mutual adjustment This innovative collection will appeal to students and scholars of gender studies public policy and administration international relations law and political science
