The Battles That Created England 793-1100 Arthur C. Wright,2023-01-05 In popular imagination the warfare of the Early Middle Ages is often obscure unstructured and unimaginative lost between two military machines the Romans and the Normans which saw the country invaded and partitioned In point of fact we have a considerable amount of information at our fingertips and the picture that should emerge is one of English ability in the face of sometimes overwhelming pressures on society and a resilience that eventually drew the older kingdoms together in new external responses which united the English in a common sense of purpose This is the story of how the Saxon kingdoms which had maintained their independence for generations were compelled to unite their forces to resist the external threat of the Viking incursions The kingdoms of East Anglia Mercia Northumbria Kent Essex Sussex and Wessex were gradually welded into one as Wessex grew in strength to become the dominant Saxon kingdom From the weak thelred to the strong Alfred rightly deserving the epithet Great to the strong but equally unfortunate Harold this era witnessed brutal hand to hand battles in congested melees which are normally portrayed as unsophisticated but deadly brawls In reality the warriors of the era were experienced fighters often displaying sophisticated strategies and deploying complex tactics Our principal source replete with reasonably reliable reportage are the Anglo Saxon Chronicles comprehensive in collation though subject to oral distortion and mythological excursions The narrative of these does not appear to flow continuously leaving too much to imagination but by creating a complementary matrix of landscapes topography and communications it is possible to provide convincing scenery into which we can fit other archaeological and philological evidence to show how the English nation was formed in the bloody slaughter of battle
