The Self in Moral Space David Parker, 2018-07-05 All of us take our moral bearings from a conception of the good or a range of goods that we consider most important We are in this sense selves in moral space Building on the work of the philosopher Charles Taylor among others David Parker examines a range of classic and contemporary autobiographies including those of St Augustine William Wordsworth Friedrich Nietzsche Edmund Gosse Roland Barthes Seamus Heaney and J M Coetzee to reveal a whole domain of life narrative that has been previously ignored one that enables a new approach to the question of what constitutes a good life narrative Moving from an ethics toward an aesthetics of life writing Parker follows Wittgenstein's view that ethics and aesthetics are one The Self in Moral Space is distinctive in that its key ethical question is not What is it right for the life writer to do but the broader question What is it good to be This question opens up an important debate with the dominant postmodern paradigms that prevail in life writing studies today In Parker's estimation such paradigms are incapable of explaining why life writing matters in the contemporary context Life narrative he argues faces readers with the perennial ethical question How should a human being live We need a new reconstructive paradigm as offered by this book in order to gain a fuller understanding of life narrative and its humanistic potential

Teenagers and Reading Jacqueline Manuel, Sue Brindley, 2012 Teenagers and Reading Literary heritages cultural contexts and contemporary reading practices brings together international research and practical perspectives on the current state of teenagers reading The contributions by teachers researchers and other educators explore the what how when where and why of adolescents reading advancing our understanding of the relationships between and among teenage readers texts and contexts Art and Belief Ruth Illman, 2014-09-19 Art and Belief explores communication between faiths through an examination of contemporary artistic practice The book discusses how a range of artists formulate their worldview and what motivates them to engage in dialogue These artists are engaged in a wide range of artistic forms and practice and come to dialogue from diverse religious positions The aim of the book is to question the assumptions of interreligious dialogue as a largely intellectual exercise in defining the religious other and to explore dialogue as a manifestation of interpersonal ethics What Should I Believe? Dorothy Rowe, 2012-05-23 Suddenly in the twenty first century religion has become a political power It affects us all whether we're religious or not If we're not in danger of being blown up by a suicide bomber we've got leaders to whom God speaks ordering them to start a war We're beset by people who demand that we give ourselves to Jesus while they smugly assure us of their own superiority and inherent goodness We're surrounded by those who noisily reject science while making full use of the benefits science brings by the spiritual ones the ones who believe in magic and there's the militant atheists berating us all for our stupidity We wouldn't object to what people believed if only they'd keep it to themselves We want to make up our own minds about what we believe but it's difficult to do this Everyone has to face the dilemma that we all die but no one knows for certain what death actually is Is it the end of our identity or a doorway to another life. Whichever we choose, our choice is a fantasy that determines the purpose of our life. If death is the end of our identity, we have to make this life satisfactory whatever satisfactory might mean to us. If it is a doorway to another life, what are the standards we have to reach to go to that better life? All religions promise to overcome death, but there is no set of religious or philosophical beliefs that ensures that our life is always happy and secure. Moreover, for many of us, what we were taught about a religion severely diminished our self-confidence and left us with a constant debilitating feeling of guilt and shame. Through all this turmoil comes the calm, clear voice of eminent psychologist Dorothy Rowe. She separates the political from the personal, the power seeking from the compassionate. She shows how, if we use our beliefs as a defence against our feelings of worthlessness, we feel compelled to force our beliefs on to other people by coercion or aggression. However, it is possible to create a set of beliefs expressed in the religious or philosophical metaphors most meaningful to us, which allow us to live at peace with ourselves and other people, to feel strong in ourselves without having to remain a child forever dependent on some supernatural power and to face life with courage and optimism.

Philosophical Notes: an Outlook Adrian Brockless, 2009-12-16. This book is not a typical philosophical text; it is only really a series of notes, what one might call short philosophical reflections on various subjects grouped loosely into topics. Discussions in the book include an examination of the relationships between art and culture, what counts as good judgment and why, rights and their relationship with our understanding of individuality, individuality and its relationship to ethical perspectives, what it means to receive a good education and how this nourishes our understanding of the differences between education and training. It also looks at the role of art in education, the nature of art and its relationship with meaning and the impact of the natural world on our understanding. Adrian Brockless is currently on the academic staff of Heythrop College, University of London.
