Abstract

Urban Regeneration seeks to bring about appropriate guided transformations in the physical, social, economic and environmental contexts of the city that has deteriorated over a period of time. The historic core of the city is one such place that gets worn out, disguised and ultimately destroyed. This collective asset of the city and its community is valuable, needs to be recognised, restored and managed. The case of each Indian city is such that it presents a unique character, hence demands unique intervention. The present article focuses on a small city of Hassan, in the state of Karnataka, India. The historic core of the city is centred on community living, and traditional occupations, dotted with temples marked by local fairs and festivals, presently endangered with traffic movement, parking, inappropriate land uses and the like. The proposal aims at restoration of the historic glory of the city based on a careful analysis of the existing situation and opportunities available. A holistic intervention approach proposed is based on the internal–external factor evaluation, and the prioritization matrix. The work presented can be a model for urban regeneration intervention that can be replicated contextually in the urban historic core of any small city across the globe.

The theory of Urban Regeneration is the management of urban change based on Institutional and organizational dynamics, which defines the role, process and the content of urban regeneration. The activity is rooted in practice and there is no single accepted theory. Urban intervention involves the integrated collective negotiated effort of public, private and community sectors to find appropriate solutions to the changing circumstances in the economic, environmental, social and political context and is likely to bring about changes in the Institutional structures. Development of the Institutional structure is a means for
