author Berman interviews in this moving book about loss We see here how when an adult dies the parents spouse and children of that person become the focus but brothers and sisters most often fall to the sidelines and are left to find a way to deal with the grief and recover alone Yet when a brother or sister dies we lose our longest lifetime companion someone with whom we have shared an intimate family history And in most cases that was someone for whom we had conflicted feelings shared identity yet competitive feelings pride yet jealousy love yet hate Most of us come to make peace with the relationship at some point How to make peace with the death of the sibling which can conjure up a well of feelings from wishing you were closer to wanting to change some past events you shared can haunt an adult But author Claire Berman who lost her own sister to heart disease in the week of September 11 2001 when America lost its innocence takes us into the emotional world of sibling loss showing us how to understand and navigate the aftermath of a loss that can leave adults feeling angry confused guilty empty or just like Berman wanting to hit that speed dial button still marked with her sister s name

Pike,1997 The death of a sibling is generally recognized to be a significant and traumatic loss for the surviving sibling especially if the loss occurs in childhood Cain et al 1963 Davids 1993 Rosen 1985 1986 However little is known about the subjective experience of losing a sibling in early adulthood and what it means to mourn the death of an adult sibling This study was a qualitative exploration of the subjective experience of losing a sibling in early adulthood and of the mourning process that ensues This study attempted to understand the multiple meanings the death can come to have for the surviving sibling to examine how this loss becomes integrated into the life of the surviving sibling and to understand more fully the complexities of the mourning process of sibling death in early adulthood Counseling Adolescents Through Loss, Grief, and Trauma Pamela A. Malone,2016-02-19 Loss grief and trauma come into the lives of adolescents in many forms and with more frequency than the adults in their lives may realize Assessing the depth and nature of their emotions can be difficult adolescents are typically reluctant to show strong emotions and can be difficult to reach particularly when they experience the untimely death of a loved one How best to work with a young person who may have trouble communicating their emotions even under the best of circumstances And what if he or she has learned about the death of a loved one or classmate from another peer rather than a family member What about gender differences and the influence of culture and family What role do cell phones text messaging and technologies such as Facebook play in the adolescent grief experience Adolescents use of technology creates unlimited access to friends support systems and information but news that spreads quickly without buffering effects can intensify the strength of the adolescent grief responses Counseling Adolescents Through Loss Grief and Trauma not only examines these issues it also provides clinicians with a wealth of resources and time tested therapeutic activities that are sure to become an indispensable part of any clinician s practice
