A man and a woman are walking down a dirt path that winds through a lush vineyard. The woman, on the left, is wearing a bright red dress and has blonde hair. The man, on the right, is wearing a light-colored blazer, a dark shirt, light-colored trousers, and a fedora. They are both looking at each other and smiling. The path is flanked by rows of grapevines with green leaves, and the background is bright and slightly out of focus.

Jane L. Chapman, 2019-11-06 This book represents the first systematic attempt to analyse media and public communications published in Britain by people of African and Afro Caribbean origin during the aftermaths of war presenting an in depth study of print publications for the period 1919-1924 This was a period of post conflict readjustment that experienced a transnational surge in special interest newspapers and periodicals including visual discourse This study provides evidence that the aftermath of war needs to be given more attention as a distinctly defined period of post conflict adjustment in which individual voices should be highlighted As such it forms part of a continuing imperative to re-discover and recuperate black history adding to the body of research on the aftermaths of The First World War black studies and the origins of diaspora Jane L Chapman analyses how the newspapers of black communities act as a record of conflict memory and specifically how physical and political oppression was understood by members of the African Caribbean community Pioneering black activist journalism demonstrates opinions on either empowerment or disempowerment visibility self esteem and economic struggles for survival Wilful Neglect Jane Thomas, 2025-11-14 Tuberculosis once a leading cause of death in Europe and North America was understood to be preventable and even curable by the early twentieth century Yet despite growing knowledge about the disease and interventions that would slow its spread tuberculosis deaths among First Nations in Canada remained staggeringly high Government policies rooted in colonialism exacerbated a tuberculosis epidemic Wilful

Neglect explores the devastating consequences of the Department of Indian Affairs failed responses to tuberculosis among First Nations in Canada from 1867 to 1945 Even when medical treatment for tuberculosis became widely available and despite the federal government s obligations being written into treaties and other legislation the basic health needs of First Nations remained unmet The government instead prioritized an assimilationist agenda including the placement of Indigenous children in residential schools which became hotbeds for the spread of the infection Drawing on the department s own annual reports memoranda and budgets over more than seventy years Jane Thomas traces key moments decisions and individuals involved in shaping federal health policy laying bare the consequences of racializing a disease Health policies developed by colonial governments without the involvement of First Nations have always failed Wilful Neglect demonstrates a direct link between the federal government s historic health policies and the disparities that continue into the present
