The Spatha M.C. Bishop,2020-01-23 Adopted from the Celts in the 1st century BC the spatha a lethal and formidable chopping blade became the primary sword of the Roman soldier in the Later Empire Over the following centuries the blade its scabbard and its system of carriage underwent a series of developments until by the 3rd century AD it was the universal sidearm of both infantry and cavalry Thanks to its long reach the spatha was the ideal cavalry weapon replacing the long gladius hispaniensis in the later Republican period As the manner in which Roman infantrymen fought evolved styles of hand to hand combat changed so much that the gladius was superseded by the longer spatha during the 2nd century AD Like the gladius the spatha was technologically advanced with a carefully controlled use of steel Easy maintenance was key to its success and the spatha was designed to be easily repaired in the field where access to a forge may have been limited It remained the main Roman sword into the Late Roman period and its influence survived into the Dark Ages with Byzantine Carolingian and Viking blades Drawing together historical accounts excavated artefacts and the results of the latest scientific analyses of the blades renowned authority M C Bishop reveals the full history of the development technology training and use of the spatha the sword that defended an empire Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications ,1975

Roman Military Equipment from the Punic Wars to the Fall of Rome, second edition M. C.
