Man The Computer:

Man and Computer M. Marois, 1972-08-09 Man-computer Interaction B. Shackel, 1981 The aim of this book is to bring together and try to interrelate some of the concepts and relevant knowledge from the various disciplines concerned with this area of research and application including especially the human sciences and engineering The focus throughout is upon the human rather than upon the computer issues in man computer interaction MCI The book is based upon the papers presented at the Advanced Study Institute held at Mati Attica Greece 5 13 September 1976 which was sponsored by the NATO Advanced Study Institutes Programme These papers were not intended to be encyclopaedic or to yield a state of the art volume But as revised here they do represent the scope and breadth of man computer interaction This book will serve its purpose if it helps to structure and stimulate research in the field applications and increase the interaction between readers and writers Program Analysis--a Problem in Man-computer Communication Joseph Harris Green, 1970 This report presents a display oriented scheme to help the higher level language computer programmer to debug and analyze programs Timed visual interpretive execution and a variety of user instituted functions permit an informative dialogue between the man and the computer A prototype implementation of the system using FORTRAN as the higher level language is described and the results are discussed from the point of view of the system developer as well as the point of view of the user Also treated is the problem of what a time sharing system should do to make graphical input tablets useful devices in a time shared environment The Air Force Comptroller , 1967 Evaluation of Man-computer Input Techniques for Military Information Systems Michael H. Strub, 1971 The publication describes the evaluation in terms of speed and accuracy of four configurations of procedures for inputting information into a semi automated information processing system Sixty USMA Prep School enlisted men were given an experimental task requiring each to translate 35 free text messages into computer acceptable terminology Accuracy and speed of two input procedures were each compared under two conditions of verification In one procedure the subjects translated the incoming message onto a paper format before transcribing on a CRT screen off line In the other procedure the message was transcribed directly on the CRT screen on line In the unverified condition one man performed the input operation without error check in the verified condition two men translated the same message compared their translations and resolved differences before entering the information into the data base Performance results under the four experimental conditions were also compared with a similar 7th Army TOS procedure in which a message is translated onto a paper format and the unverified message is copied on the CRT screen by the UIOD user input output device operator National Science Research Data Processing and Information Retrieval System, Hearings Before the General Subcommittee on Education....91-1, on H.R. 8809, April 29, 30, 1969 United States. Shackel, 2014-01-14 The aim of this book is to bring together and try to inter relate some of the concepts and relevant knowledge from the various disciplines concerned with this area of research and application including especially the human sciences computer sciences and engineering The focus throughout is upon the human rather than upon the computer issues in Man Computer Interaction MCI The book is based upon the papers presented by invited speakers at an Advanced Study Institute held at Mati Attica Greece 5 18 September 1976 which was sponsored by the NATO Advanced Study Institutes Programme These papers were not intended to be encyclopaedic or to yield a state of the art volume But as revised here they do represent well the scope and breadth of MCI man is used throughout generically for men women humans people The material in this book is as timely today as when presented in lectures it is not out of date Indeed in many respects it is more timely because the computer industry is now recognising the need to heed the users Computer designers are becoming receptive to the importance of the human factors aspects Recognition of the user's needs has been stimulated by the work elsewhere as well as here of the contributors to this book Encyclopedia of Computer Science and Technology Jack Belzer, Albert G. Holzman, Allen Kent, 1978-07-01 This comprehensive reference work provides immediate fingertip access to state of the art technology in nearly 700 self contained articles written by over 900 international authorities Each article in the Encyclopedia features current developments and trends in computers software vendors and applications extensive bibliographies of leading figures in the field such as Samuel Alexander John von Neumann and Norbert Wiener and in depth analysis of future directions The Use of Computers for Man-machine Modelling Gerald P. Chubb, 1970 Four papers each describing a different approach to modelling man are presented The first paper describes an extension of the servo theoretic approach to describing the human operator as an active element of a control system The model presented has been developed to describe and predict muscular actions The second paper addresses the monte carlo simulation of human performance within a task and time analytic framework and illustrates the current state of the art A third paper deals with man computer interaction in information processing and decision making tasks An attempt was made to describe such interactions in a manner that facilitates the allocation of tasks to man and the computer The fourth paper demonstrates the feasibility of graphically portraying human biomechanical movements on an IBM graphic display console Such techniques can simulate human movements and aid the designer in optimizing workplace geometry Together these papers illustrate the breadth of techniques available for modelling man in a man machine environment Research in
