Ethics in Practice IAP book series The focus on assessment in this second book is a timely response to the urgent search among business schools for ways to teach and assess ethics at a time when the public's faith in corporations and business schools has been undermined greatly by the failure of both to respond to widespread corruption and scandals in the business sector Although no one expects business education alone to resolve these problems the distinguished scholars represented in this book advocate that business schools should at least do their part by exposing their students to decision models that incorporate ethical dimensions on behalf of corporate stakeholders and society at large As the book's title conveys it is then important to assess key learning objectives to insure that business students graduate knowing ethics fundamentals and armed with the ability to recognize ethical dilemmas and possible solutions during the course of their careers This book will speak to all who are interested in accountability for business ethics education especially business school deans university administrators faculty members students and prospective employers This audience will find that the enterprise of assessing business ethics education is advanced in three ways First the book functions as a venue for distinguished scholars to share the innovative ways that they are assessing ethics coverage in courses and degree programs Second these authors identify what needs to be assessed and the means for doing so Third the book serves not only as a guide to assessment but also as a platform for expanding and improving ethics coverage in business schools Moreover an important take away for readers is the provision of a simple formula first advocated by Diane L Swanson and William C Frederick University of Pittsburgh in 2005 for delivering ethics education that minimizes assessment errors By following this formula business schools can provide assurances that ethics will not be assessed as being sufficient when it is woefully inadequate or even missing in the curriculum and that it cannot be distorted diluted or trivialized by uninformed coverage and still pass inspection Avoiding these assessment errors is critical in an educational environment in which weak accrediting standards for ethics go hand in hand with spotty uniformed coverage that would not be tolerated for other business disciplines

The Human in Command Carol McCann, Ross Pigeau, 2012-12-06 MAJOR GENERAL M K JEFFERY Command and indeed the human in command has always been key to military operations The complexity and tempo of modern operations make this statement even more true today than in the past However both the military and the research 2 communities have tended to treat command and control C from a limited perspective For too long command and control have been considered as if they were a single concept with control often dominating our study Indeed in many 2 cases we have divorced operational C from the military institution itself resulting in disconnects and inefficiencies Then in an attempt to overcome these self inflicted deficiencies we have pursued the Holy Grail of technology hoping that it 2 would solve our C problems Only now as we start to realize technology s costs 2 and limitations are we looking critically at C This book attempts to take such a look The contributions that make up this book are the product of a June 1998 NATO North Atlantic Treaty Organization workshop called The Human in Command Far from being purely an academic exercise this gathering brought together military leaders and civilian scientists to discuss C s central pragmatic and conceptual issues its assumptions its practices and its organization Indeed in recent years there has been mounting evidence that both our society and its military institutions are facing organizational crises

Organizational Behaviour In Construction Anthony Walker, 2011-06-20 The core of all successful organizations is the effectiveness with which people work together. Individuals have differing characteristics and personalities and the manner in which they interact is the key to meeting organizational objectives. This is the case for all organizations but particularly so in construction which is distinctly different from other industries. Construction is complex and highly differentiated with a wide range of specialists with disparate professional skills working in a highly integrated way to deliver projects successfully. Understanding how the people involved in construction behave and work together is necessary for projects to have successful outcomes. Organizational behaviour is an established field in mainstream management literature but general treatments cannot reflect the specific issues and idiosyncrasies of the construction industry and the people who inhabit it. Organizational Behaviour in Construction addresses the behaviour of individuals and groups within the different organizations which come together on construction projects and within the organizations created to manage projects. It describes how their behaviour impacts on the performance of construction organizations and their contribution to the project as a whole. Drawing on mainstream organizational literature but putting it into the specific context of construction and containing many illustrations drawn from the industry, this book will be required reading for all senior undergraduate and postgraduate students of construction as well as middle and senior management in the industry.
