Managerial School Post Welfarism And Social Justice In Education:

The Managerial School Sharon Gewirtz, 2003-12-16 The relationship between welfare and the state has undergone a sustained process of reconfiguration over the past two decades and managerialism has played a key role in this process In education parents are now seen as consumers and schools as small businesses their income dependent on their success in attracting customers within competitive local markets At the same time management practices borrowed from business such as target setting and performance monitoring now play a key role in regulating schools What kinds of schools are the reforms producing What impact are they having on school culture and values What are the social justice implications of applying a business model to the provision of schooling In The Managerial School Sharon Gerwartz draws on in depth interviews with teachers in a range of secondary schools and close observation of school practices to try to answer these questions Through a comparison of Conservative and New Labour policies she argues that New Labour s third way for education is a contradictory mix of neo liberal authoritarian and humanistic strands that is not in any real sense a new educational settlement This empirically based account of over a decade of education reform offers a unique insight into the effects of managerialism on schools and a hard hitting analysis of the inherent tensions in a system that undoubtedly perpetrates social injustice

Alternative Education Yoshiyuki Nagata, 2007-03-30 Alternative streams of education have been and remain an important but difficult theme for teachers parents policy makers and scholars By focusing on case studies of six countries Bolivia Thailand Australia USA The Netherlands and Denmark and by comprehensively analysing these by means of international comparative methodologies the author approaches the nuts and bolts issues of alternative and mainstream education systems The case studies include Charter Schools in the USA and Waldorf Schools in Australia The study presents not only an insightful analysis of alternative forms of education with regard to actual issues in societies and also legal and administrative features of education It provides insights into the kind of school development that could be appropriate in the 21st century and the types of educational communities we should seek to create in the age of globalisation
