Managing Anxiety And Stress:

Anxiety and Stress Management Trevor Powell, Simon Enright, 2015-09-25 Most stress is a normal part of daily life and can be coped with adequately by the individual. Prolonged or more serious stress however may require professional help. A local GP can often provide this but in many cases will refer the client to a mental health worker or other health professional. Originally published in 1990 this title was written for each of these groups as a practical handbook and guide for those professionals working in the field of mental health but also written for the referring GP and those seeking help themselves. The authors integrate theoretical and academic material relating to anxiety and stress research with clinical experience. The book begins with a theoretical section offering a working model of stress, a guide to diagnostic classification and alternative models of anxiety. This is followed by chapters on assessment explaining the problem and treatment procedures to the client, teaching specific self help skills and changing stressful lifestyles. Advice is also given on running anxiety and stress management groups and individual case studies are examined. The authors make extensive use of analogy and metaphor to ensure ready understanding and recall. They also include many useful inventories, questionnaires, charts and client handouts. Anxiety and Stress Management will be of use to all health professionals working with people who have anxiety and stress related problems but will prove equally valuable for the clients themselves as a reference book and as a means of self education and self help.

Managing Anxiety and Stress James Archer, 1991 This self help book provides information about stress and stress management. The first part focuses on awareness of stress. A number of activities are included to help the individual understand and analyze stress reactions. Information is provided about stressors, performance stress, cumulative stress and several other aspects of stress reactions. Also included is information about negative effects of excessive stress including physical, psychological and behavioral difficulties. Finally an approach to managing stress which requires an understanding of the stress interaction model is discussed. The second part focuses on relaxation approaches to stress management. Approaches focus on body relaxation. A format for assessing current relaxation methods is presented as well as information on several specific approaches to relaxation. A discussion on meditation and a presentation of progressive deep muscle relaxation are also included. The third part focuses on nutrition and exercise. Principles and suggestions are provided for improving dietary habits and developing an effective exercise program. The fourth part focuses on mind approaches to stress management. Four different aspects of cognitive processes as they relate to stress management are examined. Actual thinking processes are examined and modifying inaccurate thinking to improve stress management is discussed. The fifth part examines broader life style issues. The focus is on how choices are made about important life issues and how these choices influence one's personal environment. LLL
