Natural History, 1919      Writing About Animals in the Age of Revolution Jane Spencer, 2020-06-10 What did British people in the late eighteenth century think and feel about their relationship to nonhuman animals This book shows how an appreciation of human animal similarity and a literature of compassion for animals developed in the same years during which radical thinkers were first basing political demands on the concept of natural and universal human rights Some people began to conceptualise animal rights as an extension of the rights of man and woman But because oppressed people had to insist on their own separation from animals in order to claim the right to a full share in human privileges the relationship between human and animal rights was fraught and complex This book examines that relationship in chapters covering the abolition movement early feminism and the political reform movement Donkeys pigs apes and many other literary animals became central metaphors within political discourse fought over in the struggle for rights and freedoms while at the same time more and more writers became interested in exploring the experiences of animals themselves We learn how children's writers pioneered narrative techniques for representing animal subjectivity and how the anti cruelty campaign of the early 1800s drew on the legacy of 1790s radicalism Coleridge Wordsworth Clare Southey Blake Wollstonecraft Equiano Dorothy Kilner Thomas Spence Mary Hays Ignatius Sancho Anna Letitia Barbauld John Oswald John Lawrence and Thomas Erskine are just a few of the writers considered Along with other canonical and non canonical writers of many disciplines they placed nonhuman animals at the heart of British literature in the age of the French Revolution      The Routledge Research Companion to Nineteenth-Century British Literature and Science John Holmes, Sharon Ruston, 2017-05-18 Tracing the continuities and trends in the complex relationship between literature and science in the long nineteenth century this companion provides scholars with a comprehensive authoritative and up to date foundation for research in this field In intellectual material and social terms the transformation undergone by Western culture over the period was unprecedented Many of these changes were grounded in the growth of science Yet science was not a cultural monolith then any more than it is now and its development was shaped by competing world views To cover the full range of literary engagements with science in the nineteenth century this companion consists of twenty seven chapters by experts in the field which explore crucial social and intellectual contexts for the interactions between literature and science how science affected different genres of writing and the importance of individual scientific disciplines and concepts within literary culture Each chapter has its own extensive bibliography The volume as a whole is rounded out with a synoptic introduction by the editors and an afterword by the eminent historian of nineteenth century science Bernard Lightman      The Wiley-Blackwell Encyclopedia of Eighteenth-Century Writers and Writing 1660 - 1789 Paul Baines, Julian Ferraro, Pat Rogers, 2010-12-28 The Wiley Blackwell Encyclopedia of Eighteenth Century Writers and Writing 1660 1789 features coverage of the lives and works of almost 500 notable writers based in the British Isles from the return of the British

Nature's Experts Stephen Bocking,2004-09-29 With clarity and grace Stephen Bocking tackles the complicated question of the role of scientific expertise in environmental policy making Nature s Experts is a timely and important book David H Guston author of Between Politics and Science Assuring the Integrity and Productivity of Research This book by Stephen Bocking is as much about deliberative democracy as it is about science and the environment Stephen Bocking s treatment is deep perceptive and profoundly wise He has caught the heart of present and future environmental science politics and democratic governance C S Holling The Resilience Alliance and emeritus professor Arthur R Marshall Jr Chair in Ecological Sciences at the University of Florida If knowledge is power how should expert advice be deployed by a would be democratic society This perennial question is newly illuminated by this timely and wide ranging review of the role played by science in the making of environmental policy William C Clark Harvey Brooks Professor of International Science Public Policy and Human Development Harvard University John F Kennedy School of Government It seems self evident that science plays a central role in environmental affairs Regulatory agencies businesses and public interest groups all draw on scientific research to support their claims Some critics however describe science not as the solution to environmental problems but as their source Moreover the science itself is often controversial as debates over global warming and environmental health risks have shown Nature s Experts explores the contributions and challenges presented when scientific authority enters the realm of environmental affairs Stephen Bocking focuses on four major areas of environmental politics the formation of environmental values and attitudes management of natural resources such as forests and fish efforts to address international environmental issues such as climate change and decisions relating to environmental and health risks In each area practical examples and case studies illustrate that science must fulfill two functions if it is to contribute to resolving environmental controversies First science must be relevant and credible and second it must be democratic where everyone has access to the information they need to present and defend their views Ecology of Fear

Mike Davis,2014-01-14 Rich with detail bold and original Mike Davis s Ecology of Fear is a gripping reconnaissance into the urban future an essential portrait of America at the millennium Los Angeles has become a magnet for the American apocalyptic imagination Riot fire flood earthquake only locusts are missing from the almost biblical list of disasters that have struck the city in the 1990s From Ventura to Laguna more than one million Southern Californians have been directly touched by disaster related death injury or damage to their homes and businesses Middle class apprehensions about angry underclasses are exceeded only by anxieties about blind thrust faults underlying downtown L A or about the firestorms that periodically incinerate Malibu And the force of real catastrophe has been redoubled by the obsessive fictional destruction of Los Angeles by aliens comets and twisters in scores of novels and films The former Land of Sunshine is now seen by much of the world including many of L A s increasingly nervous residents as a veritable Book of the Apocalypse theme park In this extraordinary book Mike Davis the author of City of Quartz and our most fascinating interpreter of the American metropolis unravels the secret political history of disaster real and imaginary in Southern California As he surveys the earthquakes of Santa Monica the burning of Koreatown the invasion of man eating mountain lions the movie Volcano and even Los Angeles s underrated tornado problem he exposes the deep complicity between social injustice and perceptions of natural disorder Arguing that paranoia about nature obscures the fact that Los Angeles has deliberately put itself in harm s way Davis reveals how market driven urbanization has for generations transgressed against environmental common sense And he shows that the floods fires and earthquakes reaped by the city were tragedies as avoidable and unnatural as the beating of Rodney King and the ensuing explosion in the streets Routledge Handbook of Ecocriticism and Environmental Communication Scott Slovic,Swarnalatha Rangarajan,Vidya Sarveswaran,2019-02-01 Ecocriticism and environmental communication studies have for many years co existed as parallel disciplines occasionally crossing paths but typically operating in separate academic spheres These fields are now rapidly converging and this handbook aims to reinforce the common concerns and methodologies of the sibling disciplines The Routledge Handbook of Ecocriticism and Environmental Communication charts the history of the relationship between ecocriticism and environmental communication studies while also highlighting key new paradigms in information studies diverse examples of practical applications of environmental communication and textual analysis and the patterns and challenges of environmental communication in non Western societies Contributors to this book include literary film and religious studies scholars communication studies specialists environmental historians practicing journalists art critics linguists ethnographers sociologists literary theorists and others but all focus their discussions on key issues in textual representations of human nature relationships and on the challenges and possibilities of environmental communication The handbook is designed to map existing trends in both ecocriticism and environmental communication and to predict future directions This handbook will be an essential reference for teachers students and practitioners of environmental literature film journalism communication and rhetoric and well as the broader meta discipline of environmental humanities
