Bajracharya,Bishal K. Sitaula,Smriti Gurung,Nani Raut,2021 The greater Himalayan region stretching from Afghanistan in the west to Myanmar in the east is home to about a quarter of a billion people who greatly depend on available natural resources for their survival and livelihoods The ever increasing population pressure and changing climate have grave implications for the sustenance of human health and habitation in the foreseeable future The region is confronted with numerous challenges related to forest degradation land productivity disaster risk water management biodiversity loss erratic climatic patterns as well as socio political capacity The limits of arable land have essentially been reached while the need for enhancing production to sustain human nutritive requirements and livelihoods continues to increase Hence the intensification of agriculture has become a necessity rather than a choice Yet producing greater numbers of crops and quantities of food fiber and other materials on the same parcel of land runs the risk of degrading the soil fertility productivity and overall quality Therefore means to achieve this without irreversibly damaging the soil and land resource base have become imperative To this end agro forestry agro slivi pastoral systems and the adoption of a variety of regenerative crops soil and water management and conservation practices offer the potential to deliver multiple benefits without sacrificing the very resource upon which the human population depends The need for ecologically sound and sustainable management of natural resources in the Himalayan region as well as the adaptation of local communities to the impacts of climate change and measures for its mitigation cannot be over emphasized This book presents findings on approaches to sustainable land management and the intensification of agriculture and animal husbandry related to soil organic matter management and carbon sequestration for multiple benefits and the agroforestry as a crop diversification strategy with livelihood and climate mitigation adaptation benefits along with other aspects of forest biodiversity and water resources management The book deals with technical socio economic policy and biodiversity issues related to the sustainable use and management of natural resources namely forests soil land water crops animal husbandry and diversity of flora fauna as well as disaster risk and vulnerability of communities in the Himalayan region There is a continuing need to study and research approaches for harmonizing human needs and lifestyles with natural ecosystems and processes so that both may co exist in a mutually beneficial manner

Impact of Climate Change on Water and Health Velma I. Grover, 2012-12-18 Since the hydrological cycle is so intricately linked to the climate system, any change in climate impacts the water cycle in terms of change in precipitation patterns, melting of snow and ice, increased evaporation, increased atmospheric water vapor, and changes in soil moisture and runoff. Consequently, climate change could result in floods in some areas and droughts in others, resulting in varying availability and the quality of water, which affects the quality of life, food security, and also health security. This book examines the impact of climate change on water as well as health.

Key Aspects of Himalayan Geology Sandipan Ghosh, 2025-03-27 This book serves as a ready reference book for anyone who is interested in the Himalayan geology and appraises the readers with the latest findings. The Himalayan syntaxes compose about one-third of the India-Asia collision zone and encompass a substantial part of the crustal deformation that occurs within the system. The Darjeeling-Sikkim Himalaya (DSH) marks the beginning of the Eastern Himalaya, which is the most active orogenic zone coupled with variable seismicity. It is located between Bhutan to the east and Nepal to the west. In the west, Sikkim shares Kanchenjunga, Earth's third highest mountain, with Nepal, while the ridge line forming Sikkim's eastern border flanks the Yadong-Gulu rift graben. DSH, cradled by the river system of the Tista, is a large geodynamic laboratory of nature where orogeny is still in its youth to early mature phases of evolution. Giant-scale endogenous turmoil thoroughly overhauled the terrain, mostly within the confines of distinct belts or divisions, and spectacularly uplifted the terrain in superlative terms. Resting on the foundation of structure, tectonics, geomorphology, stratigraphy, and evolution, the wings of geology extend much further. Several books, mostly having regional approaches of different scales, have been written on the Himalayan geology with specified intentions Geological Aspects of the DSH is based on more than direct references and succinctly opens a gateway to variable aspects of mineral study active tectonics crustal deformation tectono stratigraphy seismicity sedimentary geology palaeontology landslides and tectonic geomorphology The book apprises the readers with the latest findings The book is addressed to university students for their academic needs and to those who are willing to work in Himalayan terrain The large number of topics covered in this book is hardly available in any other single book so far Anyone interested in the geology of the Himalaya might use the book as a quick reference Different Dimensions of Geology and Geomorphology are described in nine key chapters
