Footprints: Fossilised Locomotion? Matthew R. Bennett, Sarita A. Morse, 2014-08-20 Human footprints provide some of the most emotive and tangible evidence of our ancestors. They provide evidence of stature, presence, behaviour, and in the case of early hominin footprints, evidence with respect to the evolution of human gait and foot anatomy. While human footprint sites are rare in the geological record, the number of sites around the World has increased in recent years along with the analytical tools available for their study. The aim of this book is to provide a definitive review of these recent developments with specific reference to the increased availability of three-dimensional digital elevation models of human tracks at many key sites. The book is divided into eight chapters. Following an introduction, the second chapter reviews modern field methods in human ichnology, focusing on the development of new analytical tools. The third chapter then reviews the major footprint sites around the World, including details on several unpublished examples. Chapters then follow on the role of geology in the formation and preservation of tracks, on the inferences that can be made from human tracks, and the final chapter explores the application of this work to forensic science. Audience: This volume will be of interest to researchers and students across a wide range of disciplines: sedimentology, archaeology, forensics, and palaeoanthropology. The Call of the Vast:

Jeffrey Meldrum, Charles E. Hilton, 2011-06-27 The inspiration for this volume of contributed papers stemmed from conversations between the editors in front of Chuck Hilton's poster on the determinants of hominid walking speed presented at the 1998 meetings of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists AAPA Earlier at those meetings Jeff Meldrum with Roshna Wunderlich had presented an alternate interpretation of the Laetoli footprints based on evidence of midfoot flexibility As the discussion ensued we found convergence on a number of ideas about the nature of the evolution of modern human walking From the continuation of that dialogue grew the proposal for a symposium which we called From Biped to Strider the Emergence of Modern Human Walking The symposium was held as a session of the 69th annual meeting of the AAPA held in San Antonio Texas in 2000 It seemed to us that the study of human bipedalism had become overshadowed by the often polarized debates over whether australopithecines were wholly terrestrial in habit or retained a significant degree of arboreality
