Natures Museums Victorian Science And The Architecture Of Display:

Nature's Museums Carla Yanni, 2005-09-09 Yanni art history Rutgers U examines the relationship between architecture and science in the 19th century by considering the physical placement and display of natural artifacts in Victorian natural history museums She begins by discussing the problem of classification the social history of collecting as well as architectural competitions and Victorian Science and Imagery Nancy Rose Marshall, 2021-07-27 The nineteenth century was a period of science and imagery when scientific theories and discoveries challenged longstanding boundaries between animal plant and human and when art and visual culture produced new notions about the place of the human in the natural world Just as scientists relied on graphic representation to conceptualize their ideas artists moved seamlessly between scientific debate and creative expression to support or contradict popular scientific theories such as Darwin's theory of evolution and sexual selection deliberately drawing on concepts in ways that allowed them to refute popular claims or disrupt conventional knowledges Focusing on the close kinship between the arts and sciences during the Victorian period the art historians contributing to this volume reveal the unique ways in which nineteenth century British and American visual culture participated in making science and in which science informed art at a crucial moment in the history of the development of the modern world Together they explore topics in geology meteorology medicine anatomy evolution and zoology as well as a range of media from photography to oil painting They remind us that science and art are not tightly compartmentalized separate influences Rather these are fields that share forms manifest as waves layers lines or geometries that invest in the idea of the evolution of form and that generate surprisingly kindred responses such as pain pleasure empathy and sympathy

Nature Displaced, Nature Displayed Nuala C. Johnson, 2011-04-29 Botanical gardens brought together in a single space the great diversity of the earth's flora They displaced nature from forest and foothill and rearranged it to reveal something of the scientific principles underpinning the apparent chaos of the wild Nature Displaced Nature Displayed shows how the design and display of such gardens was not determined by scientific principles alone Through a study of three botanical gardens belonging to the University of Cambridge the Royal Dublin Society and the Belfast Natural History Society the author shows how the final outcome involved a complex interplay of ideas about place identity empire botanical science and especially aesthetics creating spaces that would educate the mind as well as please the senses This highly engaging book offers a wealth of fresh insights into both the history and development of botanical gardens as well as connections between science and aesthetics

The Victorian Palace of Science Edward J. Gillin, 2017-11-09 The Palace of Westminster home to Britain's Houses of Parliament is one of the most studied buildings in the world What is less well known is that while Parliament was primarily a political building when built between 1834 and 1860 it was also a place of scientific activity The construction of Britain's legislature presents an extraordinary story in which politicians and officials laboured to make their new Parliament the most radical modern building of its time by using the very latest scientific knowledge Experimentalists employed the House of Commons as a chemistry laboratory geologists argued over the Palace's stone natural philosophers hung meat around the building to measure air purity and mathematicians schemed to make Parliament the first public space where every room would have electrically controlled time Through such dramatic projects Edward J Gillin redefines our understanding of the Palace of Westminster and explores the politically troublesome character of Victorian science

Nature and culture Samuel J. M. M. Alberti, 2017-10-03 This is a vital new work the first to take the University of Manchester's Museum as its subject By setting the museum in its cultural and intellectual contexts Nature and culture explores twentieth century collecting and display and the status of the object in the modern world Beginning with the origins of the Manchester Museum accounting for its development as an internationally renowned university museum and concluding at its major expansion at the turn of the millennium this book casts new light on the history of museums How did objects become knowledge Who encountered museum objects on their way to museums What happened to collections within the museum How did visitors use and respond to objects In answering these questions Nature and culture illuminates not only the history of one institution but also contributes to wider discussions in the history of science cultural history and museology

Scientific Institutions and Practice in France and Britain, c.1700-c.1870 Maurice Crosland, 2023-05-31 This second collection of studies by Maurice Crosland has as a first theme the differences in the style and organisation of scientific activity in Britain and France in the 18th and early 19th centuries Science was more closely controlled in France notably by the Paris Academy of Sciences and the work of provincial amateurs much less prominent than in Britain The most dramatic change in any branch of science during this period was in chemistry largely through the work of Lavoisier and his colleagues the focus of several articles here and the dominance of this group caused considerable resentment outside France not least by Joseph Priestley The issue of authority in science emerges again within France under the rule of Napoleon in a study of the exceptional power exercised by the great mathematician Laplace both in theoretical science and in academic politics This exploration of organisation and power is complemented by a comparative study of the practice of early physics and chemistry and their different reliance on laboratories This raises the question of whether chemistry provided a model for later experimental work in other sciences both through the construction of pioneering laboratories and in establishing early schools of research

Vision, Science and Literature, 1870-1920 Martin Willis, 2015-07-22 This book explores the Victorian concept of vision across scientific and cultural forms Willis charts the characterization of vision through four organizing principles small large past and future to arrive at a Victorian conception of what vision was Willis then explores how this Victorian vision influenced twentieth century ways of seeing

Encyclopedia of Library and Information Sciences John D. McDonald, Michael Levine-Clark, 2017-03-15 The Encyclopedia of Library and Information Sciences comprising of seven volumes now in its fourth edition compiles the contributions of major researchers and practitioners and explores the cultural institutions of more than 30 countries This major reference presents over 550 entries extensively reviewed for accuracy in seven print volumes or online The new fourth edition which includes 55 new entries and 60 revised entries continues to reflect the growing convergence among the disciplines that influence information and the cultural record with coverage of the latest topics as well as classic articles of historical and theoretical importance Cracks in the Dome: Fractured Histories of Empire in the Zanzibar Museum, 1897-1964 Sarah Longair, 2016-03-09 As one of the most monumental and recognisable landmarks from Zanzibar's years as a British Protectorate the distinctive domed building of the Zanzibar Museum also known as the Beit al Amani or Peace Memorial Museum is widely known and familiar to Zanzibaris and visitors alike Yet the complicated and compelling history behind its construction and collection has been overlooked by historians until now Drawing on a rich and wide range of hitherto unexplored archival photographic architectural and material evidence this book is the first serious investigation of this remarkable institution Although the museum was not opened until 1925 this book traces the longer history of colonial display which culminated in the establishment of the Zanzibar Museum It reveals the complexity of colonial knowledge production in the changing political context of the twentieth century British Empire and explores the broad spectrum of people from diverse communities who shaped its existence as staff informants collectors and teachers Through vivid narratives involving people objects and exhibits this book exposes the fractures contradictions and tensions in creating and maintaining a colonial museum and casts light on the conflicted character of the colonial mission in eastern Africa

Beatrix Potter Linda Lear, 2008-03-04 In this remarkable biography Linda Lear offers a new look at the extraordinary woman who gave us some of the most beloved children's books of all time Potter found freedom from her conventional Victorian upbringing in the countryside Nature inspired her imagination as an artist and scientific illustrator but The Tale of Peter Rabbit brought her fame financial success and the promise of happiness when she fell in love with her editor Norman Warne After his tragic and untimely death Potter embraced a new life as the owner of Hill Top Farm in the English Lake District and a second chance at happiness As a visionary landowner successful farmer and sheep breeder she was able to preserve the landscape that had inspired her art Beatrix Potter A Life in Nature reveals a lively independent and passionate woman whose art was timeless and whose generosity left an indelible imprint on the countryside Racial Science and Human Diversity in Colonial Indonesia Fenneke Sysling, 2016-07-15 Indonesia is home to diverse peoples who differ from one another in terms of physical appearance as well as social and cultural practices The way such matters are understood is partly rooted in ideas developed by racial scientists working in the Netherlands Indies beginning in the late nineteenth century who tried to develop systematic ways to define and identify distinctive races Their work helped spread the idea that race had a scientific basis in anthropometry and craniology and was central to people's identity but their encounters in the archipelago also challenged their ideas about race In this new monograph Fenneke Sysling draws on published works and private papers to describe the way Dutch racial scientists tried to make sense of the human diversity in the Indonesian archipelago The making of racial knowledge it contends cannot be explained solely in terms of internal European intellectual developments It was on the ground that ideas about race were made and unmade with a set of knowledge strategies that did not always combine well Sysling describes how skulls were assembled through the colonial infrastructure how measuring sessions were resisted what role photography and plaster casting played in racial science and shows how these aspects of science in practice were entangled with the Dutch colonial Empire

Museums and empire John M. MacKenzie, 2017-03-01 Museums and Empire is the first book to examine the origins and development of museums in six major regions of the British Empire in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries It analyses museum histories in thirteen major centres in Canada South Africa Australia New Zealand India and South East Asia setting them into the economic and social contexts of the cities and colonies in which they were located Written in a lively and informative style it also touches upon the history of many other museums in Britain and other territories of the Empire A number of key themes emerge from its pages the development of elites within colonial towns and cities the emergence of the full range of cultural institutions associated with this and the reception and modification of the key scientific ideas of the age It will be essential reading for students and academics concerned with museum studies and imperial history and to a wider public devoted to the cause of museums and heritage

Vanished Sadiya Qureshi, 2025-06-05 A vital and important book David Olusoga From an award winning historian of race science and empire a path breaking and poignant history of extinction as a scientific idea an imperial legacy and a political choice Anyone alive today is among a tiny fraction of the once living over 90% of species that ever existed are now extinct How did we come to think of ourselves as survivors in a world where species can vanish forever or as capable of pushing our planet to the verge of a sixth mass extinction Extinction Sadia Qureshi shows us is a surprisingly modern concept and a phenomenon that is not as natural as we might think In Europe until the late eighteenth century species were considered perfect and unchanging creations of God Then in the age of revolutions scientists gathered enough fossil evidence to determine that mammoth bones for example were not just large elephants but a lost species that once roamed the Earth alongside ancient humans Extinction went from being regarded as theologically dangerous to pervasive and even inevitable Yet Vanished shows us that extinction is more than a scientific idea it is a political choice that has led to devastating consequences Europeans and Americans quickly used the notion that extinction was a natural process to justify persecution and genocide predicting that nations from Newfoundland's Beothuk to Aboriginal Australians were doomed to die out from imperial expansion Exploring the tangled and unnatural histories of extinction and empire Vanished weaves together pioneering original research and breath taking storytelling to show us extinction is both an evolutionary process and a human act one which illuminates our past and may alter our future

Museum Configurations John Peponis, 2023-12-19 Museum Configurations demonstrates how museum space functions cognitively and communicatively and questions whether it can be designed to provide a rich embodied experience situating displays and their public in felicitous dialogue Including contributions from authors working in the disciplines of architecture psychology museum studies history and the visual arts this volume addresses an interdisciplinary audience The analysis of a wealth of examples shows how the voices of architects curators and exhibition designers enter into dialogue and invite visitors to make their own connections between physical cognitive and affective space Considering how the layout of museums facilitates movement and orientation so that visitors may devote their attention to displays the book questions what kinds of visual attention characterizes museum experiences and how the design of museum space can support them In the context of an often dematerialized atomized and dissipating contemporary culture the book proposes that museums can function as shared space that supports enjoyment and learning without being overly didactic Museum Configurations focuses upon the functions and aims of the design of space This makes the book particularly interesting to academics and students working in exhibition design and museum architecture as well as to exhibition designers curators and architects

Behind the Scenes at the Science Museum Sharon Macdonald, 2020-05-21 What goes on behind closed doors at museums How are decisions about exhibitions made and who or what really makes them Why are certain objects and styles of display chosen whilst others are rejected and what factors influence how museum exhibitions are produced and experienced This book answers these searching questions by giving a privileged look behind the scenes at the Science Museum in London By tracking the history of a particular exhibition Macdonald takes the reader into the world of the museum curator and shows in vivid detail how exhibitions are created and how public culture is produced She reveals why exhibitions do not always reflect their makers original intentions and why visitors take home particular interpretations Beyond this local context however the book also provides broad and far reaching insights into how national and global political shifts influence the creation of public knowledge through exhibitions
