The Pacific in the Age of Early Industrialization Kenneth Pomeranz, 2017-05-15

The essays selected for this volume show how the Pacific rapidly became part of an industrializing world. Its raw materials notably rubber and copper were critical; some of its handicraft industries were devastated by mechanized competition; others survived and adapted, contributing to distinctive patterns of industrialization that made Japan a new center of power and also laid the groundwork for later growth in Taiwan, Korea, and coastal China. The Pacific coast of the Americas was also first drawn into an industrial world largely as an exporter of raw materials, but North and South diverged rapidly, portending futures even more different than those of Northeast and Southeast Asia. By the 1930s, when the uneven effects of industrialization would have much to do with plunging the Pacific into war, one can already glimpse in outline the structural bases for many of the region's contemporary characteristics. All this is set in context in the important introduction by Kenneth Pomeranz.

Environmental History in the Pacific World J.R. McNeill, 2022-03-01 This volume brings together a set of key articles from the last 30 years pertaining to the environmental history of the Pacific basin. It aims to treat the islands and waters of the Pacific as well as the lands around the Rim from New Zealand to Japan to California to Chile and is the first work of environmental history to take this inclusive view of the Pacific basin. The focus is mainly on recent centuries, but as environmental history requires, at times the work also takes the very long view of millennia. Several of the articles seek to bring a broad Pacific perspective to bear on their subjects, while others use Pacific basin examples to try to establish broader theoretical points of interest to all who are drawn to the study of the interactions between nature and culture. The book includes a bibliography of Pacific basin environmental history and an introduction that aims to sketch the contours and possible future directions of the field.

Eclipsed Entrepôts of the Western Pacific John E. Wills Jr., 2024-12-11 Among the great entrepôts around the Pacific, there were some which had such great advantages of location that for many centuries there always was a trade center somewhere in the vicinity. Others rose to prominence for a time when the political and economic conditions were right but then were eclipsed and almost forgotten. In the 1600s, Taiwan was a vortex of world trade and great power rivalry but then became a remote frontier of the great Qing Empire. Hoi An in central Vietnam was another major center of foreign trade, strongly encouraged by the local Nguyen rulers from the 1500s to the 1770s but then was shattered by the Tayson Rebellion and revived only in very different form under the 19th century Nguyen dynasty. This volume offers access to the scattered but excellent scholarship on these two intriguing cases, which help throw light on the success of other centers such as Macao or Manila.

Freedom and Growth Stephan R. Epstein, 2000 This book examines whether different kinds of freedoms—absolutist, parliamentary, and republican—caused different economic outcomes and shows the effect of different political regimes on long-term development.

Governance, The State, Regulation and Industrial Relations Ian Clark, 2002-06-01 This book examines the legacy of economic and political aims and objectives formulated by the British government during and immediately after the second world war. It examines contemporary patterns of regulation by the state and reform in the industrial relations system as factors of these historically embedded influences. This book makes an important contribution to the history and theory of British post war economics The Political Economy of Mercantilism Lars Magnusson, 2015-06-12 Since the days of Adam Smith Mercantilism has been a hotly debated issue. Condemned at the end of the 18th century as a false system of economic thinking and political practice it has returned paradoxically to the forefront in regard to issues such as the creation of economic growth in developing countries. This concept is often used in order to depict economic thinking and economic policy in early modern Europe; its meaning and content has been highly debated for over two hundred years. Following on from his 1994 volume Mercantilism: The Shaping of an Economic Language this new book from Lars Magnusson presents a more synthetic interpretation of Mercantilism not only as a theoretical system but also as a system of political economy. This book incorporates samples of material from the 1994 publication alongside new material ordered in a new set of chapters and up to date discussions on mercantilism up to the present day. Tracing the development of a particular political economy of Mercantilism in a period of nascent state making in Western and Continental Europe from the 16th to the 18th century the book describes how European rulers regarded foreign trade and industrialisation as a means to achieve power and influence amidst international competition over trades and markets. Returning to debates concerning whether Mercantilism was a system of power or of wealth Magnusson argues that it in fact was both and that contemporaries almost without exception saw these goals as interconnected. He also emphasises that Mercantilism was an all European issue in a time of trade wars and the struggle for international power and recognition. In examining these issues this book offers an unrivalled modern synthesis of Mercantilist ideas and practices.

Intra-Asian Trade and Industrialization A.J.H. Latham, Heita Kawakatsu, 2009-05-08 Under the impressive editorship of A.J.H. Latham and comprising high quality essays on a topic of rising interest to scholars and policymakers this volume makes some valuable contributions to regional and global dynamics of trade. With contributions from leading names in the field of economic history such as D.A. Farnie this book will be useful reading for scholars interested in global economic history, globalization and regional trade and Asian studies. The Political Economy of Disaster Mats Lundahl, 2013-02-11 Haiti, one of the least developed and most vulnerable nations in the Western Hemisphere made the international headlines in January 2010 when an earthquake destroyed the capital Port au Prince. More than a year later little reconstruction has taken place in spite of a strong international funding commitment. Mats Lundahl has written several seminal works on Haiti and this volume brings together the best of his past work on Haiti's economic and political history along with a comprehensive introduction and two new chapters which bring the story right up to the present day. Together the volume provides both historical background and explanation as to why Haiti was so badly affected by the earthquake and to why reconstruction efforts have been ineffective thus far. Lundahl argues that the two main causes can be found in the interaction between the growth of the population and the destruction of the arable soil on the one hand and in the creation of a predatory state during the nineteenth century which still exists to this day. This book provides a comprehensive analysis which charts these themes from the time of the arrival of Columbus in the island in 1492 to the present day The book also deals with contemporary market and policy failures as well as the crucial recent elections and considers the path ahead for this impoverished nation This book will be of huge relevance and interest not only to students and researchers in economic history but also for all those working on development economics development studies and American and Caribbean Studies more generally Studies in Pacific History Dennis O. Flynn, Arturo Giráldez, James Sobredo, 2018-01-18 This title was first published in 2002 In recent years scholars have begun to conceptualize the history of the Pacific Ocean as a subset of world history This question is taken up in the introductory chapter of this volume which sets out four periods of modern Pacific history a silver period 1570s 1750 a period of early integration 1750 1850 a gold period 1850 c 1900 and a period of imperial strategies after the gold rushes The next chapter looks at the fur trade of the Pacific coast of America and its dependence on markets in China and Russia followed by a set which focus on the era of the gold rushes in California Australia and New Zealand when the pace of Pacific integration grew rapidly and new markets opened across the ocean The last chapters examine aspects of the subsequent evolution of the Pacific Ocean into an American lake looking in particular at the interlocking of politics and migration This volume carries forward study of the Pacific Centuries promoting the conceptualization of the Pacific Ocean as a coherent unit of analysis and providing further important steps toward provision of the multi century framework that is required for proper understanding of today s Pacific Century Global Economic History Tirthankar Roy, Giorgio Riello, 2024-09-05 Guiding the reader through the many guises of global economic history this book uncovers its key issues debates and subjects With contributions from leading scholars around the world it delves into the economic histories of Africa Europe Asia and the Americas from the 16th to the 20th centuries From the environment to The Great Divergence finance consumption trade industrialisation commodities and labour regimes it demonstrates the global nature of economic history and highlights how indispensable it is and has been Updated throughout this new edition boasts an expanded introduction and four new chapters on capitalism and political economy European empires and colonialism North Africa and the Middle East and the North American Economy A comprehensive introduction to global economic history this textbook provides students with a confident grasp of the field its key debates and essential issues Mercury and the Making of California Andrew Scott Johnston, 2013-09-15 Mercury and the Making of California Andrew Johnston s multidisciplinary examination of the history and cultural landscapes of California s mercury mining industry raises mercury to its rightful place alongside gold and silver in the development of the American West Gold and silver could not be refined without mercury therefore its production and use were vital to securing power and wealth in the West The first industrialized mining in California mercury mining had its own particular organization structure and built environments These were formed within the Spanish Empire subsequently transformed by British imperial ambitions and eventually manipulated by American bankers and investors In California mercury mining also depended on a workforce differentiated by race and ethnicity The landscapes of work and camp and the relations among the many groups involved in the industry Mexicans Chileans Spanish English Irish Cornish American and Chinese form a crucial chapter in the complex history of race and ethnicity in the American West This pioneering study explicates the mutual structuring of the built environments of the mercury mining industry and the emergence of California s ethnic communities Combining rich documentary sources with a close examination of the existing physical landscape Johnston explores both the detail of everyday work and life in the mines and the larger economic and social structures in which mercury mining was enmeshed revealing the significance of mercury mining for Western history

The Capital Market of Manila and the Pacific Trade, 1668-1838 Juan José Rivas Moreno, 2024-10-19 Economic history has always emphasized the importance of long distance trade in the emergence of modern financial markets yet almost nothing is known about the Manila trade This book offers the first reconstruction of the capital market of Manila using new archival sources that have never been used in the economic history of Pacific trade The book explains how trade between Asia and Spanish America across the Pacific which lasted for 250 years 1571 1815 was financed from the city of Manila The book analyses the political economy and institutional structures of the Manila capital market in the context of the global silver trade as well as addressing key similarities and differences with European trade routes and differing approaches to colonialism and commerce in Asian waters It traces how the Manila capital market emerged in a bottom up process with a redistributive aspect that tied the interests of citizens with the fortunes of trade using institutions familiar to the public like legacy funds brotherhoods and lay religious orders to pool liquidity originate working capital and internalise the risk of loss at sea It challenges the notion that there is a normative model for the development of capital markets and introduces an industrial organisation analysis to the broader structure of Early Modern trade in the Spanish Empire Sitting at the intersection of economic and financial history global history imperial history and political economy this book will be a cutting edge and valuable resource for a broad range of scholars
