Paddy Irrigation and Water Management in Southeast Asia Edward B. Rice, 1997-01-01 Jordan's health sector performs well in terms of access and health outcomes which rank among the best in the Middle East region and among other middle income countries. An estimated 80 percent of Jordan's population has formal health insurance coverage. This country study provides a detailed description and analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of Jordan's current health care system. It describes the kingdom's health care financing and delivery system and provides a conceptual and empirical policy basis for health care reforms. The study also analyzes options for universal health insurance coverage and estimates the impact of costs with a health sector financial impact model. Tables, figures and case studies help illustrate the overall analysis. The Rice-Wheat Cropping System of South Asia Palit Katak, Suresh Chandra Babu, 2021-05-30 The lives of more than a billion people depend on the answer. This valuable book surveys the problems of the rice-wheat cropping system practiced on the Indo-Gangetic Plain (IGP). Introduced at the time of the Green Revolution, it transformed agriculture and produced thirty years of bumper crops. The Rice-Wheat Cropping System of South Asia: Efficient Production Management offers scientific analysis of the aftereffects of this intense cropping. The Rice-Wheat Cropping System of South Asia: Efficient Production Management focuses on the questions of soil depletion, pest infestation and soil alkalinity as elements of declining productivity. Along with clear charts, maps and graphs, it provides practical suggestions for improving and maintaining the productivity of this irreplaceable farmland. The Rice-Wheat Cropping System of South Asia looks at the problems that have arisen for both the rice and wheat phases, including depletion of micronutrients, degradation of major nutrients from unbalanced fertilization practices, infestations of nematodes, increasing soil alkalinity as a result of irrigation. It also suggests solutions for maintaining productivity, including integrated pest management, sustainable agriculture, micronutrient fertilizers. This informative book and its companion volume, The Rice-Wheat Cropping System of South Asia: Trends, Constraints, Productivity and Policy, are essential planning tools for agronomists, policymakers and agro-economists. It is also a useful reference for anyone interested in the problems of famine and intensive cropping, not only in South Asia but in the world. Water Management in South Asia Sumana Bandyopadhyay, Habibullah Magsi, Sucharita Sen, Tomaz Ponce Dentinho, 2020-01-29 This book highlights various challenges and opportunities for water management and cooperation in South Asia. In light of increasing urbanization and development in the region and related pressure on water resources, the contributors investigate water conflictual and cooperative attitudes and gestures between countries and regions, analyse management trade-offs between nature, agriculture and urban uses, and examine water sustainable management and related policies. By studying major river basins in the region such as Indus, Ganges, Brahmaputra, Narmada, Godavari and Krishna, the chapters highlight socio-economic, infrastructural, environmental and institutional aspects of water scarcity in South Asia and present best practices for improved sustainable water management and security in the region. Producing More Rice with Less Water from Irrigated

Systems Luis Catasús Guerra, International Water Management Institute, 1998 Over the past decade we have witnessed a growing scarcity of and competition for water around the world As the demand for water for domestic municipal industrial and environmental purposes rises in the future less water will be available for agriculture But the potentials for new water resource development projects and expanding irrigated area are limited We must therefore find ways to increase the productivity of water used for irrigation This paper reviews the literature on irrigation efficiency and on the potential for increasing the productivity of water in rice based systems It stresses the continuing confusion over the concepts of irrigation efficiency and water productivity It identifies the reasons for the wide gap between water requirement and actual water input both irrigation diversions and rainfall in irrigated rice production systems and discusses potential opportunities for increasing water productivity both on farm and at the system level Based on the reported low farm and system level irrigation efficiencies the potentials for water savings in rice production appear to be very large But we do not know the degree to which various farm and system interventions will lead to sustainable water savings in the water basin until we can quantify the downstream impact of the interventions Studies on the economic benefits and costs and environmental aspects of alternative interventions are also lacking This paper emphasizes the need to measure the productivity of water at farm system and basin levels and to understand how the productivity at one level relates to the productivity at another Without water balance studies to measure productivity at these different scales it is not possible to identify the potential economic benefits of alternative interventions and the most appropriate strategies for increasing irrigation water productivity in rice based systems
