Textbook of Coronary Thrombosis and Thrombolysis R. C. Becker, 1998-01-31 Teleologically the hemostatic mechanism is among The of Coronary Thrombosis and the most fundamental yet complex physiologic process in essence represents a heartfelt gift of sciences in humans Early scientists and physicians were knowledgeable from a dedicated group of scientists and fascinated by the blood's ability to remain in a liquid state only to clot in response to vascular injury The to minimize the societal impact of hemostasis in the cellular and noncellular components of normal wound healing The book is divided into four distinct hemostasis took centuries to discover and the intricate sections Part 1 Scientific Principles lays down the basics of their delicate interactions are still being unraveled supporting foundation Part 2 Clinical Application needed today As is so often the case an in depth of Scientific Principles places the knowledge base in appreciation of physiologic hemostasis representing a working perspective directly applying science to basic life sustaining sequence of events paved the patient care Part 3 New Dimensions provides a way for understanding abnormal hemostasis or glimpse of tomorrow Steering the field clear of severe pathologic thrombosis Aristotle Malpighi and proclaimed victory and the dangers of complacency as Osier representing but a few of the founding fathers we move into the 21st century Part 4 Evolution of in the field would undoubtedly be honored to see Thrombocardiology focuses on laboratory standards their observations form the template for lifesaving clinical trials and drugs in development

History and Magical Power in a Chinese Community P. Sangren, 1987-09-01 This book is a case study of history and culture in the Taiwanese town of Taichung and the group of rural villages that constitute its standard marketing community However its scope exceeds that of most community studies The author attempts to construct a holistic view of Chinese culture from an analysis of the relationship between history and ritual in a particular locality The author argues that social institutions and collective representations are dialectically connected in the process of social and cultural reproduction He describes this dialectical process through an analysis of the key cultural concept of ling the magical power attributed to ghosts gods and ancestors In analyzing the symbolic logic of ling he asserts that it can be fully understood only as a product of the reproduction of social institutions and as a manifestation of a native historical consciousness Structuralist and Marxist insights are combined to explain how ling is best understood as both a cultural logic of symbolic relations and a material logic of social relations The book is in three parts Part I is a social and economic history that outlines what one might call an objectivist or positivist view of Taichung's history describing events as they were regardless of the perceptions of local participants This material is a background to the synchronic sociological analysis of local territorial cults that constitutes Part II In Part III the author unsettles the objectivist assumptions of Part I by showing how the idiom of ling underlies Taiwanese constructions of history and identity and how the cultural construction of history dialectically reproduces society and creates history The book is
