Evolutionary Aspects of Nutrition and Health A. P. Simopoulos, Berthold Koletzko, 1999-07 The issues treated in this publication are brought together in this way for the first time For many of the chronic diseases familial predispositions are well established and there is good evidence for true genetic predisposition When Homo erectus emerged 1 7 million years ago humans existed as non cereal eating hunter gatherers It is on this basis that according to the hypothesis of the carnivore connection an insulin resistant genotype evolved to provide survival and reproductive advantages to populations adapted to a high meat low plant food low carbohydrate nutritional environment Cereal became the major source of calories and protein in the human diet only about 10 000 years ago Humankind has thus had little evolutionary experience to adapt to this new food type maladaptation being the consequence Moreover studies comparing energy expenditure in Western societies and during the Paleolithic period indicate a low level of physical activity not previously encountered in human history a state to which humans are not genetically adapted Together with the dietary changes this has led to a modern environment in which a number of individuals are prone to chronic diseases causing increases in non insulin dependent diabetes mellitus hypertension coronary artery disease cancer and obesity As a consequence the lifestyle approach for the prevention and management of these diseases is essential varying with national dietary patterns and national economy This publication will be of special interest to physicians geneticists nutritionists dieticians anthropologists food technologists food policy makers and individuals interested in personal and family health The Cambridge World History of Food Kenneth F. Lipid Nutrition Randy L. Wysong, 1990 Fats in foods and fat on the body have become national obsessions With due cause Research is showing the far reaching deleterious effects of obesity as well as relationships between lipid fat and oil consumption and a wide range of health concerns In this seminal book Dr Wysong brings a surprise and reveals that fats are not the nutritional demons popularly assumed The key to health is not to avoid dietary fat and jump on the cholesterol checking and drug band wagon Lipids are a part of every cell and are essential components of hormones and body regulators Even cholesterol in its natural state is critical to health If it is not eaten the body produces it Dr Wysong provides the understanding necessary to avoid such popular and professional myths Natural fats are not something to avoid but rather to seek and cherish The real villain is food processing Heat light air hydrogenation and time are the enemies of healthful fats Not only does processing destroy important fats and oils but it can convert them to dangerous disease producing toxins Dr Wysong explains how to choose foods that are protected from these dangers Read carefully Lipid Nutrition can be one of those rare books which replaces the reading of dozens of others Whether you are a person just concerned with better health and nutrition or a professional seeking keys to prevention and treatment Lipid Nutrition will prove to be a wonderful aid to understanding and a valuable resource for making healthy decisions Human Diet Peter S. Ungar, Mark F. Teaford, 2002-03-30 Diet is key to understanding the past present and future of our species Much of human evolutionary success can be attributed to our ability to consume a wide range of foods On the other hand recent changes in the types of foods we eat may lie at the root of many of the health problems we face today To deal with these problems we must understand the evolution of the human diet Studies of traditional peoples non human primates human fossil and archaeological remains nutritional chemistry and evolutionary medicine to name just a few all contribute to our understanding of the evolution of the human diet Still as analyses become more specialized researchers become more narrowly focused and isolated This volume attempts to bring together authors schooled in a variety of academic disciplines so that we might begin to build a more cohesive view of the evolution of the human diet The book demonstrates how past diets are reconstructed using both direct analogies with living traditional peoples and non human primates and studies of the bones and teeth of fossils An understanding of our ancestral diets reveals how health relates to nutrition and conclusions can be drawn as to how we may alter our current diets to further our health Evolution of the Human Diet Peter S. Ungar, 2007 We are interested in the evolution of hominin diets for several reasons One is the fundamental concern over our present day eating habits and the consequences of our societal choices such as obesity prevalent in some cultures and starvation in others Another is that humans have learned to feed themselves in extremely varied environments and these adaptations which are fundamentally different from those of our closest biological relatives have to have had historical roots of varying depth The third and the reason why most paleoanthropologists are interested in this question is that a species trophic level and feeding adaptations can have a strong effect on body size locomotion life history strategies geographic range habitat choice and social behavior Diet is key to understanding the ecology and evolution of our distant ancestors and their kin the early hominins A study of the range of foods eaten by our progenitors underscores just how unhealthy many of our diets are today This volume brings together authorities from disparate fields to offer new insights into the diets of our ancestors Paleontologists archaeologists primatologists nutritionists and other researchers all contribute pieces to the puzzle This volume has at its core four main sections Reconstructed diets based on hominin fossils tooth size shape structure wear and chemistry mandibular biomechanics Archaeological evidence of subsistence stone tools and modified bones Models of early hominin diets based on the diets of living primates both human and non human paleoecology and energetics Nutritional analyses and their implications for evolutionary medicine New techniques for gleaning information from fossil teeth bones and stone tools new theories stemming from studies of paleoecology and new models coming from analogy with modern humans and other primates all contribute to our understanding When these approaches are brought together they offer an impressive glimpse into the lives of our distant ancestors The contributions in this volume explore the frontiers of our knowledge in each of these disciplines as they address the knowns the unknowns and the unknowables of the evolution of hominin diets

Illness, Identity, and Taboo among Australian Paleo Dieters Catie Gressier, 2017-11-03 This book explores the cultural and economic conditions fuelling the popularity of the polarizing Paleo diet in Australia Based on ethnographic research in Melbourne and Sydney Catie Gressier recounts the compelling narratives of individuals struggling with illness and weight issues She argues that going Paleo provides a sense of agency and means of resistance to the neoliberal policies and practices underpinning the growing prevalence of lifestyle diseases From its nostalgic constructions of the past to the rise of anti elite sentiments inherent in new forms of health populism Gressier provides a nuanced understanding of the Paleo diet s contemporary appeal

The Essential Revolution of Evolutionary Medicine Giacinto Libertini, Graziamaria Corbi, Olga Shubernetskaya, Klara Komici, Nicola Ferrara, 2025-02-24 This book proposes a way to radically renew medicine by extending to medicine the concepts of evolutionary biology The book considers diseases not as unpredictable harmful events but as logical consequences of evolutionary mechanisms In particular a large part of the most widespread diseases that afflict modern populations are interpreted as the consequence of discordances mismatches between new living conditions and the adaptation of our species It discusses the basic concepts as well as diseases deriving from alterations of the genotype and general concepts about diseases deriving from alterations of the ecological niche It also describes diseases deriving from relations with other living beings especially when the ecological niche is altered diseases deriving from conditions beyond the adaptation range and physiological phenomena that cause troubles and suffering or even death A particular study is dedicated to the interpretation of aging and its consequences in normal or altered conditions of the ecological niche The final part of the book describes the implementation of evolutionary medicine This book complementing the Evolutionary Gerontology and Geriatrics book which is also published in this series provides a valuable read for scholars and students in the fields of medicine evolutionary biology preventive medicine and gerontology
