information structure and prosody as well as those working in language documentation and description Verlag Historical Linguistics 2001 Barry J. Blake, Kate Burridge, 2003-07-17 This is a selection of papers from the 15th International Conference on Historical Linguistics held in Melbourne 13-17 August 2001 hosted by the Linguistics Program at La Trobe University. The papers range from the general theoretical to the study of particular languages and embrace most areas of linguistics particularly morpho-syntax Models of Brain and Mind Rahul Banerjee, Bikas K. Chakrabarti, 2008-02-14 The phenomenon of consciousness has always been a central question for philosophers and scientists. Emerging in the past decade are new approaches to the understanding of consciousness in a scientific light. This book presents a series of essays by leading thinkers giving an account of the current ideas prevalent in the scientific study of consciousness. The value of the book lies in the discussion of this interesting though complex subject from different points of view ranging from physics and computer science to the cognitive sciences. Reviews of controversial ideas related to the philosophy of mind from western and eastern sources including classical Indian first person methodologies provide a breadth of coverage that has seldom been attempted in a book before. Additionally, chapters relating to the new approaches in computational modeling of higher order cognitive function and consciousness are included. The book is of great value for established as well as young researchers from a wide cross section of interdisciplinary scientific backgrounds aiming to pursue research in this field as well as an informed public. Presents the latest developments in the scientific study of consciousness. Critically reviews different theoretical and philosophical explanations related to the subject. An important book for both students and researchers in designing research projects on consciousness The Prosody of Dubbed Speech Sofía Sánchez-Mompeán, 2019-12-17 This book offers a descriptive and practical analysis of prosody in dubbed speech, examining the most distinctive traits that typify dubbed dialogue at the prosodic level. The author's unique perspective as both a translation studies researcher and a voice over professional helps to bring these two aspects of the dubbing process together into a coherent study for the first time. Supported by corpus analysis of English and Spanish episodes of US TV show How I Met Your Mother, she examines aspects of prosody in source and target languages including features such as intonation, loudness, tempo, rhythm and tension. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of translation and interpreting, media studies, television and film production as well as dubbing professionals Sound perception and production in a foreign language Nimz, Katharina, 2016-04-13 The present study addresses the question of how German vowels are perceived and produced by Polish learners of German as a Foreign Language. It comprises three main experiments: a discrimination experiment, a production experiment and an identification experiment. With the exception of the discrimination task, the experiments further investigated the influence of orthographic marking on the perception and production of German vowel length. It was assumed that explicit markings such as the Dehnungs h (lengthening h) could help Polish GFL learners in perceiving and producing German words more correctly. The discrimination experiment with manipulated nonce words showed that Polish GFL learners detect pure length differences in German vowels less accurately than German native speakers while this was not the case for pure quality differences. The results of the identification experiment contrast with the results of the discrimination task in that Polish GFL learners were better at judging incorrect vowel length than incorrect vowel quality in manipulated real words. However, orthographic marking did not turn out to be the driving factor and it is suggested that metalinguistic awareness can explain the asymmetry between the two perception experiments. The production experiment supported the results of the identification task in that lengthening h did not help Polish learners in producing German vowel length more correctly. Yet as far as vowel quality productions are concerned it is argued that orthography does influence L2 sound productions because Polish learners seem to be negatively influenced by their native grapheme to phoneme correspondences. It is concluded that it is important to differentiate between the influence of the L1 and L2 orthographic system. On the one hand the investigation of the influence of orthographic vowel length markers in German suggests that Polish GFL learners do not make use of length information provided by the L2 orthographic system. On the other hand the vowel quality data suggest that the L1 orthographic system plays a crucial role in the acquisition of a foreign language. It is therefore proposed that orthography influences the acquisition of foreign sounds but not in the way it was originally assumed. Rhyme over Reason

Réka Benczes, 2019-01-31 We are fascinated by what words sound like. This fascination also drives us to search for meaning in sound thereby contradicting the principle of the arbitrariness of the linguistic sign. Phonesthemes, onomatopoeia or rhyming compounds all share the property of carrying meaning by virtue of what they sound like simply because language users establish an association between form and meaning. By drawing on a wide array of examples ranging from conventionalized words and expressions to brand names and slogans this book offers a comprehensive account of the role that sound symbolism and rhyme/alliteration plays in English and by doing so advocates a more relaxed view of the category morpheme that is able to incorporate less regular word formation processes. Tones in Zhangzhou Yishan

Huang, 2020-01-16 This book explores the nature of tones in Zhangzhou, an underdescribed Southern Min variety based on quantitative analyses of data from 21 native speakers. It will interest students and linguists studying tone in languages of China and elsewhere in the world in particular as an exemplar in the use of statistical methods to test and establish phonological categories in language. The study finds that realisations of Zhangzhou tones are multidimensional and that Zhangzhou has eight tones overturning previous studies of seven tones based on the preservation of Middle Chinese tonal categories. The results presented here also suggest that the nature of Zhangzhou tones is morphological. The relationship between sandhi and citation tones is shown to be morphophonemic while the relationship between phrase final and citation tones is allophonic. The Phonology/paraphonology Interface and the Sounds of German Across Time Irmengard

Rauch, 2008 The Phonology/Paraphonology Interface and the Sounds of German Across Time is an excursion into the phonology of the German language in the present, the remote prehistoric past, Indo-European and Germanic and throughout
