Protecting Ones Turf Social Strategies For Maintaining Urban Neighborhoods:

Protecting One's Turf Judith N. DeSena, 1990      Protecting One's Turf Judith DeSena, 2005-02-22 Protecting One's Turf is a qualitative study that both analyzes informal residential segregation and investigates the effects of racial segregation. The focus of the study is Greenpoint, a working class neighborhood in Brooklyn, New York. The book's first edition chronicled the community-wide strategies employed to maintain a predominantly white community in Greenpoint. The revised edition examines the community's continuing gentrification.

Hate Thy Neighbor Jeannine Bell, 2013-06-08 Hate Thy Neighbor shows in devastating detail the rise and persistence of tactics for preventing residential racial integration starting in the 20th century and continuing into the present. Although many minorities can find good housing in areas they can afford, just enough of their neighbors still greet them with cross burnings, firebombs, and violence to send an ongoing warning: integrate at your own risk. Amanda I. Seligman, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Despite increasing racial tolerance and national diversity, neighborhood segregation remains a very real problem in cities across America. Scholars, government officials, and the general public have long attempted to understand why segregation persists despite efforts to combat it, traditionally focusing on the issue of white flight or the idea that white residents will move to other areas if their neighborhood becomes integrated. In Hate Thy Neighbor, Jeannine Bell expands upon these understandings by investigating a little examined but surprisingly prevalent problem of violence directed by white residents at minorities who move into their neighborhoods. Apprehensive about their new neighbors and worried about declining property values, these residents resort to extra-legal violence and intimidation tactics, often using vandalism and verbal harassment to combat what they view as a violation of their territory. Hate Thy Neighbor is the first work to seriously examine the role violence plays in maintaining housing segregation, illustrating how intimidation and fear are employed to force minorities back into separate neighborhoods and prevent meaningful integration. Drawing on evidence that includes in-depth interviews with ordinary citizens and analysis of Fair Housing Act cases, Bell provides a moving examination of how neighborhood racial violence is enabled today and how it harms not only the victims but entire communities. By finally shedding light on this disturbing phenomenon, Hate Thy Neighbor not only enhances our understanding of how prevalent segregation and this type of hate crime remain but also offers insightful analysis of a complex mix of remedies that can work to address this difficult problem. Jeannine Bell is Professor of Law at IU Maurer School of Law, Bloomington. She is the author of Policing Hatred: Law Enforcement, Civil Rights, and Hate Crime. Police and Policing Law and Gaining Access to Research Sites: A Practical and Theoretical Guide for Qualitative Researchers, with Martha Feldman and Michele Berger.

Seeing Cities Change Jerome Krase, 2016-04-01 Cities have always been dynamic social environments for visual and otherwise symbolic competition between the groups who live and work within them In contemporary urban areas all sorts of diversity are simultaneously increased and concentrated chief amongst them in recent years being the ethnic and racial transformation produced by migration and the gentrification of once socially marginal areas of the city Seeing Cities Change demonstrates the utility of a visual approach and the study of ordinary streetscapes to document and analyze how the built environment reflects the changing cultural and class identities of neighborhood residents Discussing the manner in which these changes relate to issues of local and national identities and multiculturalism it presents studies of various cities on both sides of the Atlantic to show how global forces and the competition between urban residents in contested terrains is changing the faces of cities around the globe Blending together a variety of sources from scholarly and mass media this engaging volume focuses on the importance of seeing and in its consideration of questions of migration ethnicity diversity community identity class and culture will appeal to sociologists anthropologists and geographers with interests in visual methods and urban spaces neighbor's success influence your own potential The importance of place is increasingly recognized in urban research as an important variable in understanding individual and household outcomes Place matters in education physical health crime violence housing family income mental health and discrimination issues that determine the quality of life especially among low income residents of urban areas Neighborhood and Life Chances How Place Matters in Modern America brings together researchers from a range of disciplines to present the findings of studies in the fields of education health and housing The results are intriguing and surprising particularly the debate over Moving to Opportunity an experiment conducted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development designed to test directly the effects of relocating individuals away from areas of concentrated poverty Its results while strong in some respects showed very different outcomes for boys and girls with girls more likely than boys to experience positive outcomes Reviews of the literature in education and health supplemented by new research demonstrate that the problems associated with residing in a negative environment are indisputable but also suggest the directions in which solutions may lie The essays collected in this volume give readers a clear sense of the magnitude of contemporary challenges in metropolitan America and of the role that place plays in reinforcing them Although the contributors suggest many practical immediate interventions they also recognize the vital importance of continued long term efforts to rectify place based limitations on lifetime opportunities
