The Environment Dictionary David Kemp, 2002-01-04 The Environment Dictionary provides an essential source of information on all aspects of the environment. It includes all the basic scientific terms and concepts along with socio-economic, cultural, historical, and political elements which impact on the environment. This dictionary provides the interdisciplinary approach required to understand environmental issues worldwide. Designed for a wide range of readers, the dictionary is up to date, easy to read, and to reference, and clearly and attractively presented. Selected environmental issues which have particular importance are treated in greater depth through a series of boxed case studies. A wide range of maps, diagrams, figures, and photos illustrate the texts, and extensive cross-referencing between entries ensures readers can build on their knowledge. References and further reading sections are drawn from a wide range of accessible sources from newspaper articles and popular magazines to academic texts and journals, and provide easy access to further study and development of readers' specific interests.

Contemporary Issues in the Law of Treaties Malgosia Fitzmaurice, M. Fitzmaurice, O. A. Elias, Olufemi Elias, 2005. This book is a collection of essays dealing with issues of contemporary significance in the law of treaties. It neither purports nor aspires to provide a general overview of all aspects of the law of treaties, and it is by no means intended to be a comprehensive textbook. The discussion of the subjects selected in this book will shed some light on a number of areas of the contemporary law of treaties and consequently on some important features of the international legal system at the beginning of the twenty-first century. The relevance of the rules governing the law of treaties for other central fields of international law continue to be the subject of frequent doctrinal discussion. In addition, some rapidly developing newer areas of public international law which are regulated for the most part by treaties have renewed the importance of some older problems, for example, the question of conflicts between treaties regulating the same subject matter and the matter of treaty interpretation. One other important issue is the relevance of the emergence of new actors and factors other than states in the international legal order in general and in the law of treaties in particular.

Behind the Curve Joshua P. Howe, 2014-04-01. In 1958, Charles David Keeling began measuring the concentration of carbon dioxide in the Earth's atmosphere at the Mauna Loa Observatory in Hawaii. His project kicked off a half-century of research that has expanded our knowledge of climate change. Despite more than fifty years of research, however, our global society has yet to find real solutions to the problem of global warming. Why? In Behind the Curve, Joshua Howe attempts to answer this question. He explores the history of global warming from its roots as a scientific curiosity to its place at the center of international environmental politics. The book follows the story of rising CO<sub>2</sub> illustrated by the now famous Keeling Curve through a number of historical contexts, highlighting the relationships among scientists, environmentalists, and politicians as those relationships changed over time. The nature of the problem itself, Howe explains, has privileged scientists as the primary spokespeople for the global climate. But while the science-first forms of advocacy they developed to fight global warming produced more and better science, the primacy of science in global warming politics has failed to produce meaningful results. In fact, an often exclusive focus on science has left advocates for change vulnerable to political opposition and has limited much of the discussion to debates about the science itself. As a result while we know much more about global warming than we did fifty years ago CO<sub>2</sub> continues to rise. In 1958 Keeling first measured CO<sub>2</sub> at around 315 parts per million by 2013 global CO<sub>2</sub> had soared to 400 ppm. The problem is not getting better it's getting worse. Behind the Curve offers a critical and levelheaded look at how we got here.

Atmospheric Ozone Dynamics Costas

Varotsos, 2013-11-11 An increasing all-time low because of the anthropogenically induced ozone depletion and relevant increase of the surface ultraviolet UV radiation including erythemal part of the UV spectrum has resulted in the growth of interest to total ozone TOZ surface and satellite observations surface UV measurements with an emphasis on UV B and the interpretation of observation results to assess potential impacts of the UV radiation enhancement on man and biosphere. The significance of this phenomenon is different in various countries. Special attention has been paid for instance to ozone depletion and UV radiation increase at high latitudes. This problem has also been discussed during the Workshop. It is equally clear however that low and mid latitude environmental dynamics requires careful monitoring and assessment of environmental trends as well. Such a conclusion is especially true for the Mediterranean Region where numerous resort places are located and subject to excessive levels of Solar Ultraviolet Radiation. This is why the NATO Advanced Research Workshop Ground Level and Satellite Ozone Observations Changes in the Mediterranean Region was organized and took place in Athens Greece during the time period 31 October 4 November 1995. It should be pointed out however that presentations discussed during the Workshop went far beyond the regional scale of consideration. This has been very important because it opened an opportunity to analyse the Mediterranean environmental situation in the broader context of the European global changes.

An Ecological Approach to International Law Prue Taylor, 2008-01-28 An Ecological Approach to International Law shows that international environmental law is fundamentally flawed and not equipped to meet global challenges. The book examines international legal responses to global climate change by analysing key concepts such as the doctrine of state sovereignty the law on state responsibility environmental rights and common heritage of mankind.

Climate Change Thomas W. Giambelluca, Ann Henderson-Sellers, 1996-05 Integrating issues of climate modelling ecological and human dimensions of climate change and policy implications this volume addresses the critical problems of climate change from a Southern Hemisphere perspective. However the spatial focus in the book is not defined just by latitude but also by geopolitical criteria.

encompassing the developing world the tropics north of the equator as well as regions south of the equator The book begins by examining the geographic and geopolitical plurality of the Earth including north and south distinctions and the science policy plurality A hemispheric perspective on coupled climate modelling is then discussed providing a state of the art summary of climate modelling as it pertains to the Southern Hemisphere In addition the book examines the interaction of humanity the biosphere and the atmosphere discussing the biospheric effects of climate change possible climatic impacts of biospheric change particularly tropical deforestation and the human health implications of climate and climate change
