Handbook of Prevention Science Beth Doll, William Pfohl, Jina S. Yoon, 2012-03-07 Prevention research has traditionally focused on preventive interventions tied to specific disorders e.g. substance abuse conduct disorders or criminality This produced silos of isolated knowledge about the prevention of individual disorders but not about interventions that work across disorders This handbook is the first to comprehensively describe current research and practice in mental health prevention programs that is organized around comprehensive prevention systems that reach across all disorders and all institutions within a community Throughout the book preventive interventions are seen as a necessary component of effective mental health programs not as a replacement for therapeutic interventions Provided by publisher

Students' manual* Edward Bradford Titchener,1905 The general purpose with which this book has been written is sufficiently indicated by its title I have selected a number of the classical experiments of Experimental Psychology and have tried to present them in such a way that their performance shall have a real disciplinary value for the undergraduate student Within this general purpose my aim has been two fold I have sought to show in the first place that psychology is above the laboratory that we employ our instruments of precision not for their own sake but solely because they help us to a refined and more accurate introspection And secondly just as in my Outline of Psychology and Primer of Psychology I gave the results of experimentation a prominent place in the psychological system so here I have treated the selected experiments not as separate exercises but as points of departure for systematic discussion PsycINFO Database Record c 2005 APA all rights reserved
