Variables Affecting the Communication of Agricultural Technology Jogindar Singh Dhillon, 1972 The general principles with respect to message complexity and message organisation derived from common type of communication we g social affective official etc are applicable to technical communication in agriculture The effect of message complexity and encoding organisation on fidelity of message decoding has cross cultural validity If proper controls are imposed successful experimentation can be undertaken on non captive audiences under realistic life situations Fidelity of message decoding by farm decision makers is dependent not only on the encoding complexity and encoding organisation of a message but also on their adoption status age education and attitudes towards improved agricultural practices 83 per cent of change in the fidelity of message decoding is produced by the variables of encoding complexity encoding organisation adoption status age education attitudes and aspirations Fidelity of message decoding of farm decision makers is increased by lowering the level of message complexity and explicitly organising a message Timeliness of message transmission to other farm decision makers will increase the fidelity of message decoding From the fidelity of message decoding point of view message complexity more important than message organisation High message complexity and implicit encoding organisation result in loss and distortion of information among all types of farm decision makers Though it is more so for farm decision makers with low adoption status and who are older and illiterate Low message complexity and explicit encoding organisation increase the fidelity of message decoding by low adoption status older and less educated farm decision makers more than it does for high adoption status younger and educated farm decision makers
