Managing Corporate Social Responsibility in Action Frank de Bakker, 2016-05-13 Since the mid 1990s, political and public debates about the social responsibilities of firms have gained renewed force. Although CSR seems to be a well-defined concept in management literature, in its diverse applications, the CSR concept loses much of its pertinence. In Managing Corporate Social Responsibility in Action, the authors focus on different aspects of managing CSR in action to capture differences between discourse and practice. By examining the question from three angles—talking about CSR, doing CSR, and measuring CSR—they attempt to make sense of the difference between practice and reality. This volume considers ways to overcome the difficulties that arise around CSR in action.

This book analyses changes which have occurred in the organization and management of the UK public services over the last 15 years looking particularly at the restructured NHS. The authors present an up to date analysis around three main themes: 1 the transfer of private sector models to the public sector 2 the management of change in the public sector 3 management reorganization and role change. In doing so they examine to what extent a New Public Management has emerged and ask whether this is a parochial UK development or of wider international significance. This is a topical and important issue in management training professional and policy circles. Important analytic themes include an analysis of the nature of the change process in the UK public services characterisation of quasi markets the changing role of local Boards and possible adaptation by professional groupings. The book also addresses the important and controversial question of accountability and contributes to the development of a general theory of the New Public Management.
