Edgington, 2011-01-01 Six thousand people died and hundreds of thousands lost their homes when an earthquake hit Kobe in January 1995 The Hanshin Earthquake was the largest disaster to affect postwar Japan and one of the most destructive postwar natural disasters to strike a developed country Although the media focused on the disaster's immediate effects the long term reconstruction efforts have gone largely unexplored Based on fieldwork and interviews with planners activists and bureaucrats Reconstructing Kobe records the first ten years of reconstruction and recovery and offers detailed descriptions of the geography of crisis and opportunity Which districts were most vulnerable to the quake and why Did planners successfully exploit opportunities to revitalize the city and make it more sustainable and disaster proof David Edgington's intricate investigation of one of the largest redevelopments in recent history offers a compelling post disaster case study for planners and policy makers and is essential reading for students and scholars of Japanese urban and planning history

Social Decision Methodology for Technological Projects C.A. Vlek, G. Cvetkovich, 2012-12-06 This book grew out of the conviction that the preparation and management of large scale technological projects can be substantially improved We have witnessed the often unhappy course of societal and political decision making concerning projects such as hazardous chemical installations novel types of electric power plant or storage sites for solid wastes This has led us to believe that probabilistic risk analysis technical reliability analysis and environmental impact analysis are necessary but insufficient for making acceptable and justifiable social decisions about such projects There is more to socio technical decision making than applying acceptance rules based on negligibly low accident probabilities or on maximum credible accidents

Consideration must also be given to psychological social and political issues and methods of decision making Our conviction initially gave rise to an international experts workshop titled Social decision methodology for technological projects SDMTP and held in May 1986 at the University of Groningen the Netherlands at a time when Cvetkovich spent a sabbatical there The work shop aimed at surveying the issues and listing the methods to address them was the first part of an effort whose second part was directed at the production of this volume Plans called for the book to deal systematically with the main problems of socio technical decision making it was to list a number of useful approaches and methods and it was to present a number of integrative conclusions and recommendations for both policy makers and methodologists
