Evaluation of the first phase ,     HC 401 - Managing the Care of People with Long-Term Conditions Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Health Committee, 2014-07-03 15 million NHS patients in England with long term conditions such as diabetes arthritis and asthma account for 70% of the annual expenditure of the NHS in England One projection estimating that the bill for treatment of long term conditions will require the NHS to find 4 billion more each year by 2016 Increasingly patients do not have a single long term condition but live with two or more conditions complicating treatment and adding to its cost The Committee strongly supports the development of individual care planning for people with long term conditions based on the principles successfully demonstrated in the NHS House of Care programme Care planning approaches will involve GPs community health services and specialists sitting down with the patient to draw up a personalised plan for the care required which includes the support needed to help the patient manage his or her own condition The challenge though of introducing personalised care planning for 15 million people is substantial The Committee looked at the prevailing view that services to treat long term conditions should be moved out of hospitals and into primary and community care To provide effective care for these conditions services have to be maintained across all settings from support in the home through to acute specialist care and many conditions will continue to require specialist services delivered in hospital Effective management of long term conditions also requires collaboration with other government providers such as housing and transport services      Supporting People with Dementia at Home David Challis, Caroline Sutcliffe, Jane Hughes, Richard von Abendorff, Pamela Brown, John Chesterman, 2016-04-01 Supporting People with Dementia at Home details a groundbreaking study of an intensive care management scheme designed for older people with dementia that are at risk of entry into residential care. The authors use a quasi experimental approach to compare how the individuals on the mental health team in one community were matched to a similar community without the service. They analyze the evidence focusing on the eventual placement of the individual, the quality of care they receive, and also the needs of their carers. This book offers valuable evidence about the factors which can maximize the independence and well being of older people with dementia from the perspective of older people and their carers. For those who commission services it is highly relevant to service models for the National Dementia Strategy in England.

Nursing: Health Education and Improving Patient Self-Management Barbara Sassen, 2023-03-01 This new edition describes the latest advances in health education and patients self management addressing core questions such as How can you motivate a patient to adopt a healthier lifestyle and how can you support their self management. Though there is a broad consensus within the nursing profession on the importance of health promotion and the promotion of self management, nursing professionals often struggle with the underlying theoretical and practical aspects involved, as well as the right type of intervention to use and how to evaluate the results. The book departs from concepts of health. In the first chapters it examines health at the micro, meso, and macro level combined with epidemiological health indicators. The following chapters focus on prevention, health promotion, and self management while also broadly discussing prevention. The book then turns to the development and purpose of as well as plans for health promotion and health education. The Intervention Mapping protocol is the starting point, addressing questions such as how to motivate a patient to other healthier behavior. Subsequently, the field of health promotion is extended to disease prevention, patient education, and self management. On the basis of patients needs, the book describes methods and interventions to promote self management in detail. Self management and chronic health problems are also highlighted along with the patient's social network in connection with self management and eHealth. Lastly, the book explores the relationship between nursing and health promotion, as well as disease prevention, diagnoses, interventions, and care results. Additionally, this edition includes two trainings on Promoting the self management of the patient and on What is the role of the nursing professional in promoting self management of the patient. This book is intended for bachelor and master courses for nursing professionals and is linked to the CanMeds competencies of health promoters and reflective evidence based working professionals.
