Managing Consultants Consultancy As The Management Of Impressions:

Managing Consultants Timothy Clark, 1995 Looks at problems in selecting a management consultancy and evaluating consulting services identifying root causes in the structure and dynamics of the management consultancy industry and discussing the foundations of a successful client consultant relationship Uses an on going theatrical analogy or dramaturgical metaphor to analyze the work of consultants and illustrates two types of consultancy work executive search and the work of management gurus Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR Managing Consultants Clark, Timothy, 1995-11-01 Managers are increasingly being convinced from all sides that traditional structures systems and cultures are no longer appropriate to today's competitive conditions and that organizations must change fundamentally It is in the context of these pressures that managers feel it increasingly necessary to seek external support by turning to those who offer some solution to these dilemmas the management consultants This book argues that the initial selection of a management consultancy and the subsequent evaluation of the quality of service they deliver are inherently problematic Two root causes are identified the structure and dynamics of the management consultancy industry and the characteristics of the management consultancy service Timothy Clark examines how these problems are overcome by revealing the foundations of a successful and long term client consultant relationship In a departure from previous analyses of management consultancy he argues that the key to understanding consultancy and its success is to appreciate that successful consultancy in its methods at least emphasizes the active management of the client consultant relationship At the core of successful consultancy is the art of impression management A consultant seeks to create a reality which persuades the client that they have purchased a high quality service The work of consultants is analysed and understood in terms of the theatrical analogy or dramaturgical metaphor A consultancy intervention is therefore conceived of as a dramatic event This is illustrated with reference to two types of consultancy work executive search i.e. headhunting and the work of management gurus

Bouwmeester,2010-01-01 This book compares the approaches of consultants and academic advisers and provides an in depth analysis of their advice argumentation Both compete on the market for economic advice with consultants enjoying a larger market share and usually obtaining higher fees However academics criticize them for overcharging shallowness and quick and dirty methods So are consultants clients misled or even cheated Not necessarily The book reveals that academics have drawbacks as well their arguments are less balanced than those of consultants and their estimates contradict each other more Economic Advice and Rhetoric argues that clients should be cautious challenging academics to reconsider their understanding of consulting practices Onno Bouwmeester illustrates that the instrumental concept of academic advice as assumed by mainstream economists and policy scientists does not guide the practice of academic advisers and thus creates wrong expectations He deconstructs the current understanding of academic advice and counters the view held by critical academics that consultants rhetoric is misleading by comparing it to the rhetoric of academics This rhetorical analysis will be informative to academics and advisors with an interest in the subject of consulting Students aiming to become consultants as well as consultants who want to learn more about academic advisers as their competitors will also find this book an invaluable resource ECEI2011- 6th European Conference on Innovation and Entrepreneurship Heather

Jamieson, Robert C. Barnett, Anthony F. Buono, 2016-03-01 As a follow up to a 2010 volume on organizational change related consulting the book continues to push our thinking about the dynamics involved in consulting with change leaders and intervening in the change
