H. HUDSON,2021-11-17 DURING recent years we have heard much about the great and rapid changes now going on in the plants and animals of all the temperate regions of the globe colonized by Europeans These changes if taken merely as evidence of material progress must be a matter of rejoicing to those who are satisfied and more than satisfied with our system of civilization or method of outwitting Nature by the removal of all checks on the undue increase of our own species To one who finds a charm in things as they exist in the unconquered provinces of Nature s dominions and who not being over anxious to reach the end of his journey is content to perform it on horseback or in a waggon drawn by bullocks it is permissible to lament the altered aspect of the earth s surface together with the disappearance of numberless noble and beautiful forms both of the animal and vegetable kingdoms *The Naturalist in La Plata ...
