Intellectuals and Society Thomas Sowell, 2010-03 Sowell unravels the world of intellectuals in order to illustrate an

Sandefur Western Kentucky University American's ability to compete in world markets is eroding The productivity growth of our competitors outdistances our own The capacity of our economy to provide a high standard of living for all our people is increasingly in doubt As jobs requiring little skill are automated or go offshore and demand increases for the highly skilled the pool of educated and skilled people grows smaller and the backwater of the unemployable rises Large numbers of American children are in limbo ignorant of the past and unprepared for the future Many are dropping out not just out of school but out of productive society These are not my words They are a direct quote from the Executive Summary of the Carnegie Forum Report on Education and the Economy entitled A Nation Prepared Teachers for the 21st Century p 2 1986
This report was motivated by four purposes 1 To remind Americans yet again of the economic challenges pressing us on all sides 2 To assert the primacy of education as the foundation of economic growth equal opportunity and a shared national vision 3 To reaffirm that the teaching profession is the best hope for establishing new standards of excellence as the hallmark of American education and 4 To point out that a remarkable window of opportunity lies before us in the next decade to reform education an opportunity that may not present itself again until well into the next century Specification Development Christi Lalanne, 2002-05-24 About the Series This important new series of five volumes has been written with both the professional engineers and the academic in mind Christian Lalanne explores every aspect of vibration and shock two fundamental and crucially important areas of mechanical engineering from both the theoretical and practical standpoints As all products need to be designed to withstand the environmental conditions to which they are likely to be subjected prototypes must be verified by calculation and laboratory tests the latter according to specifications from national or international standards The concept of tailoring the product to its environment has gradually developed whereby from the very start of a design project through to the standards specifications and testing procedures on the prototype the real environment in which the product being tested will be functioning is taken into account The five volumes of Mechanical Shock and Vibration cover all the issues that need to be addressed in this area of mechanical engineering The theoretical analyses are placed in the context of the real world and of laboratory tests essential for the development of specifications Volume V Specification Development This volume is concerned with the presentation of specification development in accordance with the principle of tailoring Extreme response and the fatigue damage spectra are defined for each type of stress sinusoidal vibration swept sine shock random vibration etc The process for establishing a specification from the life cycle profile of the equipment is then detailed taking account of the uncertainty factor designed to cover uncertainties related to the real environment and mechanical strength and the test factor which takes account of the number of tests performed to demonstrate the resistance of the equipment
