Pageant World History 86:

Pageants in Great Britain and the United States Caroline Hill Davis, 1916 Index of Bicentennial Activities American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, 1976 Bulletin of the New York Public Library New York Public Library, 1916 Includes its Report 1896 1945 A.L.A. Booklist, 1929 The Nation, 1915 Cannibal Tours and Glass Boxes Michael M. Ames, 2010-10-01 Cannibal Tours and Glass Boxes poses a number of probing questions about the role and responsibility of museums and anthropology in the contemporary world In it Michael Ames an internationally renowned museum director challenges popular concepts and criticisms of museums and presents an alternate perspective which reflects his experiences from many years of museum work Based on the author's previous book Museums the Public and Anthropology the new edition includes seven new essays which argue as in the previous volume that museums and anthropologists must contextualize and critique themselves they must analyse and critique the social political and economic systems within which they work In the new essays Ames looks at the role of consumerism and the market economy in the production of such phenomena as world's fairs and McDonald's hamburger chains referring to them as museums of everyday life and indicating the way in which they like museums transform ideology into commonsense thus reinforcing and perpetuating hegemonic control over how people think about and represent themselves He also discusses the moral political ramifications of conflicting attitudes towards Aboriginal art is it art or artifact censorship is it liberating or repressive and museum exhibits are they informative or disinformative The earlier essays outline the development of museums in the Western world the problems faced by anthropologists in attempting to deal with the often conflicting demands of professional as opposed to public interests the tendency to both fabricate and stereotype and the need to establish a reciprocal rather than exploitative relationship between museums anthropologists and Aboriginal people Written during the course of the last decade these essays offer an accessible often anecdotal journey through one professional anthropologist's concerns about and hopes for his discipline and its future The African American Theatrical Body Soyica Diggs Colbert, 2011-10-06 Presenting an innovative approach to performance studies and literary history Soyica Colbert argues for the centrality of black performance traditions to African American literature including preaching dancing blues and gospel and theatre itself showing how these performance traditions create the performative ground of African American literary texts Across a century of literary production using the physical space of the theatre and the discursive space of the page W E B Du Bois Zora Neale Hurston James Baldwin August Wilson and others deploy performances to re-situate black people in time and space The study examines African American plays past and present including A Raisin in the Sun Blues for Mister Charlie and Joe Turner's Come and Gone demonstrating how African American dramatists stage black performances in their plays as acts of recuperation and restoration creating sites that have the potential to repair the damage caused by slavery and its aftermath After the Shock City Tom Hulme, 2019 A comparative and trans-national study of urban culture in Britain and the United States from the late nineteenth to the twentieth century Using the industrial cities of Manchester and Chicago as case studies this book traces the idea of citizenship across different areas of local life in the first half of the twentieth century from philosophy and festivals to historical re enactment and public housing Coalitions of voluntary associations municipal government and local elites lambasted modern urban culture as the cause of social disintegration But rather than simply decanting the population to new and smaller settlements they tried to re imagine a reformed city as a place that could foster loyal and healthy communities Celebrating civic progress in the period since the shock city of the nineteenth century they sought to create a sense of local pride that could bracket growing class and racial tensions The diverse individuals groups and communities of the city reacted in different ways to this message Some were happy to gather under the identity of one civic banner Others held back by discriminatory structures of society chose to shape their own idea of citizenship one that looked far beyond the city for a sense of belonging and rights Historians have tended to emphasise the rise of national identity state centralisation and popular patriotism at the expense of distinctive local identities municipal autonomy and expressions of civic pride This book aims to redress the imbalance demonstrating how local ideas of belonging could still exert a powerful hold on the making of modern citizenship TOM HULME is a lecturer in the School of History Anthropology Philosophy and Politics Queen s University Belfast History of the Ordinance of 1787 and the Old Northwest Territory Norris Franz Schneider, Milo Milton Quaife, Northwest Territory Celebration Commission (U.S.), Federal Writers' Project, 1937

A Catalogue and Review of Plays for Amateurs , 1924 Becoming African Americans Clare Corbould, 2009-03-31 In 2000 the United States census allowed respondents for the first time to tick a box marked African American in the race category The new option marked official recognition of a term that had been gaining currency for some decades Africa has always played a role in black identity but it was in the tumultuous period between the two world wars that black Americans first began to embrace a modern African American identity Following the great migration of black southerners to northern cities after World War I the search for roots and for meaningful affiliations became subjects of debate and display in a growing black public sphere Throwing off the legacy of slavery and segregation black intellectuals activists and organizations sought a prouder past in ancient Egypt and forged links to contemporary Africa In plays pageants dance music film literature and the visual arts they aimed to give stature and solidity to the American black community through a new awareness of the African past and the international black world Their consciousness of a dual identity anticipated the hyphenated identities of new immigrants in the years after World War II and an emerging sense of what it means to be a modern American Memory Wars Andrea L. Smith, 2023-07 2024 Choice Outstanding Academic Title Memory Wars explores how commemorative sites and patriotic fanfare marking the mission of General John Sullivan into Iroquois territory during the Revolutionary War continue to shape historical understandings today Sullivan's expedition was ordered by General George Washington at a tenuous moment of the Revolutionary War It was a massive enterprise involving thousands of men who marched across northeastern Pennsylvania into what is now New York state to eliminate any present or future threat from the British allied Iroquois Confederacy Sullivan and his men carried out a scorched earth campaign obliterating more than forty Iroquois villages including homes fields and crops For Indigenous residents it was a catastrophic invasion For many others the expedition yielded untold bounty American victory over the British along with land and fortunes beyond measure for settlers who soon moved onto the razed village sites The Sullivan Expedition has long been fixed on the landscape of Pennsylvania and New York by a cast of characters including amateur historians newly formed historical societies and local chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution Asking how it is that people continue to celebrate Sullivan in the present day Memory Wars underscores the symbolic value of the past as well as the dilemmas posed to contemporary Americans by the national commemorative landscape

All Dressed Up Joan FitzPatrick Dean, 2014-11-25 In the early twentieth century publicly staged productions of significant historical political and religious events became increasingly popular and increasingly grand in Ireland These public pageants a sort of precursor to today's opening ceremonies at the Olympic games mobilized huge numbers of citizens to present elaborately staged versions of Irish identity based on both history and myth Complete with marching bands costumes fireworks and mock battles these spectacles were suffused with political and national significance Dean explores the historical significance of these pageants explaining how their popularity correlated to political or religious imperatives in twentieth century Ireland She uncovers unpublished archival findings to present scripts programs and articles covering these events The book also includes over thirty photographs of pageants program covers and detailed designs for costumes to convey the grandeur of the historical pageants at the beginning of the century and their decline in production standards in the 1970s and 1980s Tracing the Irish historical pageant phenomenon
