Art and Identity at the Water's Edge Tricia Cusack, 2017-07-05

The water's edge, whether shore or riverbank, is a marginal territory that becomes invested with layers of meaning. The essays in this collection present intriguing perspectives on how the water's edge has been imagined and represented in different places at various times, and how this process contributed to the formation of social identities. Art and Identity at the Water's Edge focuses upon national coastlines and maritime heritage, on rivers and seashore as regions of liminality and sites of conflicting identities, and on the edge as a tourist setting. Such themes are related to diverse forms of art, including painting, architecture, maps, photography, and film. Topics range from the South African seaside resort of Durban to the French Riviera. The essays explore successive ideological mappings of the Jordan River and how Czech cubist architecture and painting shaped a new nationalist reading of the Vltava riverbanks. They examine post-Hurricane Katrina New Orleans as a filmic spectacle that questions assumptions about American identity, and the coast depicted as a site of patriotism in nineteenth-century British painting. The collection demonstrates how waterside structures, such as maritime museums and lighthouses, and visual images of the water's edge have contributed to the construction of cultural and national identities.

Environment in England and Wales since 1800 John Hassan, 2016-12-05 The seaside has always held a special position in British history as a place of rest relaxation and recuperation Over the last 200 years many have made their way to the coast attracted by the long sunshine hours the clean ozone charged air and the opportunities for bathing in and even drinking sea water Although the early health resort ideal began to give way to more pleasure orientated themes in the nineteenth century the seaside holiday was still regarded by many as a wholesome and invigorating break from inland urban life well into the twentieth century Yet with ever increasing numbers of visitors and rising levels of coastal pollution this was by no means a forgone conclusion The Seaside Health and the Environment in England and Wales since 1800 explores the ways in which English seaside resorts continually reinvented themselves to take account of contemporary trends in popular leisure and maintain their hold on the public's imagination Particular account is paid to the interwar years when new obsessions with outdoor activities such as sunbathing and tanning were purposefully adopted by the industry to define the modern image of the resort holiday For these and other reasons the seaside holiday reached new peaks of popularity in the 1930s and 1950s yet this very success placed enormous pressures on the environmental amenities that people came to enjoy As this work shows environmental stresses were manifold particularly pollution of the resorts prime assets their beaches As such serious questions are raised concerning why it took such a long time for a determined effort to be made to reverse beach pollution and the lessons to be learned regarding the impact of negative images of the coast as a zone of danger and infection

(Post)Colonial Ports Jill Didur, Nalini Mohabir, 2025-05-05 This book examines the role of post colonial ports in creating and shaping the ecotonal cultural historical material environmental socio political and economic contexts in formerly colonized regions spanning the Caribbean Africa North America Europe and the Pacific The essays assess the role that literature visual culture architecture archives and ethnography can play in enriching our understanding of the complex histories of ports and port cities They present the relation between ports and colonial infrastructure such as immigration checkpoints detention centers mines plantations shipping containers canals sewers and rivers and their impact on human and more than human environments The volume approaches post colonial ports through the ecotone a concept borrowed from geography and ecology to describe a transition zone where two biological communities meet and mix such as a forest and a grassland to bring attention to port non spaces as a hinge between their environments communities and colonial infrastructure It foregrounds postcolonial and decolonial approaches to the ecotone to draw attention to the cultural ecological and geographical dynamics that inform the social fabric of contemporary ports and port cities in the wake of the empire This volume is aimed at scholars and postgraduates across disciplines such as literature geography fine arts cultural studies and history

The Art Treasures of London , 1908 The West Country John Payne, 2011-11-10 The English West Country is a land of exceptional landscapes many miles of wild unspoilt coastline and vast expanses of wild moorland great cities such as Exeter Plymouth Bath and Bristol and market towns villages and hamlets Farming mining quarrying fishing and trade are the traditional industries of the counties of Wiltshire Somerset Dorset Devon and Cornwall On one level the West Country is the most English of all English regions home of clotted cream thatch church spires folksong hobby horses and Cecil Sharp Yet the area was trading with Mediterranean Europe before the Romans For many years Bristol was the centre of the slave trade and many of its great mansions were built on the proceeds of slavery Great swathes of land in Dorset Wiltshire and Devon are still used by the military and are off bounds to visitors And within the West Country is the special case of Celtic Cornwall and the even more remote Isles of Scilly People lived in the West Country long before Britain or England were invented From the great stone circles of Avebury and Stonehenge in Wiltshire to the menhirs of Cornwall and the wealth of prehistoric remains on the Isles of Scilly this has always been an inhabited landscape crafted by men and women working closely with nature and natural forces John Payne explores this culturally rich and varied region revealing many facets of its distinctive and much loved identity
