Ferguson Lambert became one of only a handful of women who left their imprint on the study of southwestern archaeology and anthropology. In this delightful biography we gain insight into a time when there were few women establishing full time careers in anthropology, archaeology, or museums. Shelby Tisdale successfully combines Lambert's voice from extensive interviews with her own to take us on a thought provoking journey into how Lambert created a successful and satisfying professional career and personal life in a place she loved: the American Southwest while doing what she loved. Through Lambert's life story we gain new insight into the intricacies and politics involved in the development of archaeology and museums in New Mexico and the greater Southwest. We also learn about the obstacles that young women had to maneuver around in the early years of the development of southwestern archaeology as a profession. Tisdale brings into focus one of the long neglected voices of women in the intellectual history of anthropology and archaeology and highlights how gender roles played out in the past in determining the career paths of young women. She also highlights what has changed and what has not in the twenty first century. Women's voices have long been absent throughout history and Marjorie Lambert's story adds to the growing literature on feminist archaeology. Robinson, 1946 Indian Vendor Portal Program Palace of the Governors (Santa Fe, N.M.), 1993 The daily Native American art market at the Palace of the Governors is Santa Fe New Mexico's most popular tourist attraction. Known as the Portal Program for its location under the front portal or porch of the Palace, the program is descended from informal markets held in the same location since the mid nineteenth century. Officially recognized as an educational program by the Museum of New Mexico, the Portal is reserved for Native artists who display and sell work they and members of their families have made. It is more than just a good place to sell authentic indigenous art. The Portal is a Native American controlled workplace that supports hundreds of families throughout New Mexico. As a museum program, it is an instructive example of how Native people and state institutions can work together to promote understanding and to support indigenous cultures. The Portal is also a place of dynamic interaction among a diverse group of Native American artists and visitors from around the world.

Traveling New Mexico, a Guide to the Historical and State Park Markers , Recognizing Heritage Thomas H. Guthrie, 2021-11-08 In 2006 Congress established the Northern Rio Grande National Heritage Area to recognize the four hundred year coexistence of Spanish and Indian peoples in New Mexico and their place in the United States. National heritage areas enable local communities to partner with the federal government to promote historic preservation, cultural conservation, and economic development. Recognizing Heritage explores the social, political, and historical context of this and other public efforts to interpret and preserve Native American and Hispanic heritage in northern New Mexico. The federal government's recognition of New Mexico's cultural distinctiveness contrasts sharply with its earlier efforts to wipe out Indian and Hispanic cultures. Yet even celebrations of cultural difference can reinforce colonial hierarchies. Multiculturalism and colonialism have overlapped in New Mexico since the nineteenth century when Anglo American colonists began promoting the region's unique cultures and exotic images to tourists Thomas H Guthrie analyzes the relationship between heritage preservation and ongoing struggles over land water and identity resulting from American colonization He uses four sites within the heritage area to illustrate the unintentional colonial effects of multiculturalism a history and anthropology museum an Indian art market a tricultural commemorative plaza and a mountain village famous for its adobe architecture Recognizing Heritage critiques the politics of recognition and suggests steps toward a more just multiculturalism that fundamentally challenges colonial inequalities
